He served in the board of aldermen from 1895 to 1899, and was the first president of the board under the present city charter. In 1898, in 1903 he was appointed one of the principal assessors by Mayor Weeks, and held that office until the board was reorganized and its membership reduced in 1909. He was prominent in the work of the Newton Highlands Congregational church and was influential in all public matters. He is survived by one daughter, Miss Clara J. White, and two sons Mr. Walter White of Worcester and Mr. Warren White of Newton Highlands.

POLICE NOTES.

Edward T. Bliss, wanted in this city on the charge of larceny of an automobile, the property of Miss Louise K. Squires of Oakwood road, Newtonville, on August 13 last, was arrested by the Portland, Me., police Monday evening and brought back Tuesday by Inspector Fletcher. In the police court Wednesday morning before Judge Kennedy, he was found guilty and held in $1000 until Saturday. Bliss, it is alleged, went to the Dudley garage for the purpose of purchasing an automobile and on trying out one came back and told the proprietor that it was too heavy. The auto, which had been left there for the purpose of selling by Miss Squires, was taken by him, he in exchange leaving a worthless check of $25 and 10 shares of bogus sugar stock. A description of the man and auto sent out by the police resulted in his arrest.

LABOR DAY FIELD DAY

Great preparations are being made by the parishioners of St. John's church Newton Lower Falls and St. Paul's Mission, Wellesley, for the annual field day and athletic carnival to be held on the four acre campus opposite St. John's church, Newton Lower Falls, on Labor Day. Admission free.

Father Callanan, the pastor of the church, is the pioneer in the Boston diocese in introducing a field day or picnic to be held within the parish limits. Twenty years ago a Labor Day carnival was introduced by him and since then almost every parish in the diocese has followed suit. Father Callanan argued then, and holds to that view still that this idea of keeping the fathers and mothers and young people at home for their holiday amusement bears splendid fruit in more ways than one. The physical dangers of travel are avoided, the labor and fatigue of long journeys are eliminated as well as the moral dangers of saloons and evil associations. Then too, the expense is less and the enjoyment greater, and the whole family including the little ones may enjoy themselves. Father Callanan furnishes the opportunity to spend the holiday dollar in a good cause. The attractions this year are numerous, the grounds are spacious and beautiful, the car accommodations are excellent and nothing ever was or will be tolerated to shock the feelings of any one.

Fine music, games, African dodgers, striking machines, fish ponds, shooting galleries, chimney games, Aunt Sally and a hundred other attractions will keep the young and the old amused at all times. Five hundred electric lights will turn the immense campus into a fairland at night. Refreshment booths loaded down with good things will regale the hungry and thirsty reveller. Fancy tables with useful and ornamental souvenirs of the carnival will tempt the generously disposed.

Father Callanan owns the largest wall tent perhaps in New England. It encloses a space of four acres of ground.

The grounds will be beautifully illuminated at night with hundreds of electric lights and Chinese lanterns.

Much interest is centered in the baseball game to take place within the picnic grounds at 1.30 P. M. The opposing nines are the Letter Carriers and the Firemen of Wellesley. A number of small ponies will be on the grounds this year to delight the little ones. Automobiles will also be employed during the whole day and evening and a three mile ride will be given for a nickel.

The general committee in charge is as follows: Mary Shaughnessy, Celia McGuinness, Margaret McAllister, Mary Finn, Annie Leonard, Mrs. Dennis Sheehon, Martha McAllister, Agnes Alders, Mrs. Nellie Peterson, Mrs. Mich. McCourt, Mrs. Julia Manning, May Donlan, Mrs. J. M. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Wm. Mahoney, Jennie Warren, Mrs. Mich. Ryan, Mrs. John Welch, Margaret Duffley, Mrs. Wm. Pendergast, Mrs. Thos. Burke, Mrs. Thos. THE AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY

CONGRESSMAN WEEKS SPEAKS ON THE DEMOCRATIC WOOLEN BILL

Congressman Weeks' recent speech on the Democratic woolen bill will be of interest to his friends in this city. Mr. Weeks said:

In common with many Members of this House, I had supposed, and still suppose, that this schedule may be somewhat revised and give better satisfaction; and I want to say here that I am a great deal more concerned about the possibility of doing serious injury to the woolgrowing industry than I am about doing serious injury to the manufacturing industry, because the manufacturing industry can better adjust itself to changes in a tariff, if it has time to do it—and that brings to mind one of the difficulties of this situation. Gentlemen on that side say this is a step in the right direction. Nobody knows what the next step is going to be or what the last step is going to be. One of the principal elements in making up business stability is to have a known foundation on which you may base your business, on which you may raise capital. Now, I submit to the committee that it is not going to be easy to raise capital for this industry, or any other industry, if you have to go to the people who are looked to to furnish that capital and say to them, "We can do business along these lines, as long as this proposition lasts; but we are told by those in authority that it is not going to continue, that it is going to change from time to time, and we will have to readjust our business to conform to those changes." That is one of the disturbing things—that most disturbing thing to me in connection with this whole subject. It has been charged by several gentlemen—many speakers have referred to it—that the wool business, the manufacturing end of it, is controlled by a trust or a monopoly; that it oppresses its employees; that it pays them insufficiently; that it has made extortionate profits from the conduct of its business; and that in many ways it is inimical to the public interest.

I agree that, if there is a trust in this business or a monopoly in connection with the business, it is an element which should be considered by this House, a very important element, too, in revising the tariff, but I believe that many of the statements which have been made here about this industry are not justified, and it is largely for the purpose of pointing out some of the things which have been said about it and some reasons why I think they are not justified that I am taking this time. I am going to try to demonstrate briefly that there is no monopoly or trust connected with the wool-manufacturing business, either the American Woolen Co. or any other wool-manufacturing company; that the American Woolen Co. is not controlled by millionaires or speculators, who exploit its stock at the expense of the public or the company; that it has not made extortionate or even large profits; that it has not oppressed its employees of any age or sex, and does not control the price of labor in this industry; that it does not and has not controlled the price of wool; that it is not entirely a worsted industry.

I am going to define what a trust is, according to the best definition that can be found, and then I am going to prove mathematically that it is not a trust or monopoly under any definition that has ever been given.

Mr. FRANCIS. I assume that the gentleman is going to deduce his opinion from facts. Does the gentleman know the fact that one-half of the stock, nearly, is watered stock, representing no value?

Mr. WEEKS. If the gentleman from Ohio will wait, I will not cover up anything.

Now, there are in this country about 1,200 wool manufacturing establishments. There are 34 included in the American Woolen Co.'s plants. The number operated by individuals, as individuals, in 1905 was 333. The number operated by firms was 311. The number operated by corporations was 567, making up the total number existing at that time.

And I want to add here that it can not be said that the American Woolen Co. or the woolen industry has ever sold its products abroad at a lower price than the price asked in this country, because the sales abroad have practically been negligible for years. In other words, the people of this country are getting the benefits of what I will term intense competition in this country in the woolen and worsted industry.

The amount of capital in the year 1909 invested in the woolen and worsted manufacturing industry was $419,000,000. The capital at that time of the American Woolen Co. consisted of $35,000,000 of preferred stock and $29,000,000 of common stock. When the company was organized there was issued $20,000,000 of preferred stock and $29,000,000 of common stock. Issuing preferred and common stocks was the customary method of organizing corporations of that kind 10 years ago.

It was estimated at that time that the plants, including machinery, real-estate, and good will, had a value of $25,000,000. It is always claimed, by this combination, that economies in operation can be brought about which may assure some dividend return on the good will and other non-liquid assets of corporations. The American Woolen Co. in its organization did not differ from others in this respect. At the same time, or at the end of the first nine months' business, the bills receivable of the company, the stock on hand inventoried at cost, and the cash on hand exceeded the current liabilities of the company by more than $10,000,000. Therefore there were actual cash assets of more than 50 cents on a dollar for all the preferred stock issued, and, as I have stated, it was estimated that the plants were worth at that time $25,000,000. I do not know personally as to that, but I do know that there were many of the mills in excellent condition, that they were well equipped, that they were doing a good business, and some of them a profitable business; and, in any case it would be insane to say that the plants were not worth, as going corporations, at least $10,000,000, which, with the excess of quick assets, was the amount of the preferred stock outstanding.

Now, I want to say right here, before I get away from it, that no dividend has ever been paid on the common stock, that it has not had a wide public market, that it has sold at from $10 to $40 a share; and, therefore, there having been no dividends paid on it, it has not been a burden on the public or a burden on the business. The only burden on the business has been the dividends paid on the preferred stock.

Now, to go on and point out other reasons why I do not think the American Woolen Co. is in any way a trust. The only definition of a trust that I have ever heard which seems definite in terms comes from that distinguished Democratic leader who lives in Lincoln, Neb., who at one time is reported to have said that a trust is an organization which does 50 per cent of the total business in any industry. A monopoly must necessarily be a company or corporation which controls prices, output, wages, and other elements entering into a business. I want to show that the American Woolen Co. does not come within either of these definitions. In the first place, the total capital in 1909 employed by all the woolen and worsted manufacturing in this country was $419,000,000. At that time the preferred stock of the American Woolen Co., which is the capital on which dividends have been paid, was $35,000,000, or about 8 1/2 per cent of the total amount of the capital employed in both industries in the United States. The annual output of the American Woolen Co. has averaged from $21,000,000 the first year to $51,000,000 in the year 1909. Its average output has been about $40,000,000. The output of the worsted and woolen mills combined in this country varied from about $238,000,000 in 1899 to $308,000,000 in 1904 and $420,000,000 in 1909. In other words, the output of the American Woolen Co. has shown a gradual but varying increase, but has averaged to be about 11 1/2 per cent of the total output of all the woolen and worsted manufacturing of the country, and the actual capital invested has averaged from 8 1/2 to 9 1/2 per cent of the total amount employed in these industries.

It is charged that the American Woolen Co. is a worsted monopoly. It is a fact that there has been contention between those branches of the trade, due largely to the kinds of wool used and the duties on it, and that the worsted business has grown somewhat faster than the woolen business in the last 10 years; but the wearing of woollens or worsteds is largely a matter of fashion rather than the character of the manufacturing or the price of wool, or any element that goes into the business. Just now the fashion seems to be turning and the woolen industry is looking up. The American Woolen Co. is not entirely a worsted manufacturing industry. It is both a woolen and worsted manufacturing industry. Thirty-four per cent of its business is woolen and 66 per cent of its business is worsted. Of the 34 per cent, or, rather, included in the 34 per cent, it owns the Assabet Manufacturing Co., of Maynard, Mass., which is one of the largest woolen mills in the United States.

Of its mills, 11 are worsted, 14 are woolen, and the remainder are a combination of woolen and worsted mills. It is worsted and one-third of the business is woolen. Now, as the general business throughout the country: In 1905 the worsted output was $165,000,000 in value and the woolen output was $142,000,000 in value. That year the American Woolen Co.'s output was nearly $49,000,000; it was one of its best years, actually and proportionally. Yet that year it did only about 12 1/2 per cent of the total wool manufacturing.

Now, another reason why it is not a trust: The number of looms employed in the woolen and worsted business in the United States in the year 1905 was 81,894, or, at least, that was the total number of looms employed in the wool manufacturing business. In woollens and worsteds the number was 69,541. The number employed by the American Woolen Co. at that time was 8,600, or about 12 1/2 per cent. The number employed in New England at that time was 45,012, so that the American Woolen Co. did not at that time have over 20 per cent of the looms employed in the New England States alone in the woolen and worsted industry. The State of Pennsylvania, for instance, does 50 per cent more woolen and worsted business than the whole American Woolen Co. does in all the mills in all the States where they are operated.

Take the number of spindles. The number of spindles in operation in the year 1905 was 4,122,727, and the American Woolen Co. had 590,746, or 14 1/4 per cent of them.

In other words, neither in the number of employees, in the amount of equipment employed, in the value of the output, or in its capital stock has the American Woolen Co. at any time represented more than 15 per cent of this industry, and I submit to this committee, under such circumstances it can not be called a monopoly.

I stated that, as a second proposition, which I have already referred to, that this stock was not controlled by millionaires or speculators, or otherwise, and I want to submit some figures to demonstrate that proposition. We often think, when we are talking about trusts, monopolies, and great corporations, that it means half a dozen men or a dozen men. We read in the newspapers that a dozen or 15 men control all the industries and all the real estate of some city, and things of that sort. The real truth of the matter is that the industrial wealth of this country has become greatly distributed, and it is becoming more distributed every year.

Now, as to the owners of the shares of this American Woolen Co. Let me give the figures. There are now 12,400 shareholders, holding an average of 56 shares each. The number of shares held by trustees and executors is 16,020. The number of women stockholders is 5,684, holding an average of 21 shares each. These are the plutocrats and the millionaires and the speculators who own the American Woolen Co. They are largely women and trustees, who own the control of that company, and the average shareholding of all classes of people is only 56 to each individual.

Mr. CULLOP. Is that the preferred stock or common stock, or is it both that you are giving us now?

Mr. WEEKS. As far as the women stockholders are concerned it is preferred stock, and as far as the trustees are concerned also. I have not the notation here, and I have not the time to figure it out, so I can not tell about the other. In any case, let me explain to the gentleman, that if it does include the common stock the average preferred stockholding would be very much less.

Mr. CULLOP. What I want to know is whether it is the women and children and trustees that hold the common stock or preferred stock.

Mr. WEEKS. Trustees, as the gentleman very well knows, do not invest in non-dividend-paying stocks. They can not, under the laws of most States, do so.

Mr. CULLOP. They have fallen to their trusts because of the death of the owners.

Mr. WEEKS. Then the courts would compel them to dispose of the holdings as soon as possible, and in New England lawyers do not advise women to buy speculative stocks.

Mr. CULLOP. Lots of time women do not consult lawyers, but are induced to invest by flaming circulars which are sent abroad.

Mr. WEEKS. I thought the figures which I submit would appeal to the judgment of any reasonable man, one-half of the stockholders being women, that the control would not likely be in the hands of any one man or set of men.

Mr. FRANCIS. The gentleman knows that women are always credulous and buy easily.

Mr. WEEKS. I do not know anything about the women that the gentleman from Ohio represents; but that is not true of New England women. (Laughter.)

Now, I want to go on and show that the American Woolen Co. has not made extortionate profits. It has paid in dividends $21,583,000, which is 7 per cent on the amount of preferred stock outstanding at the time the dividends were paid. The company has accumulated a surplus which has varied from $19,000,000, when the company was first organized, to $31,000,000 today, or an increase of $12,000,000. During that time the company has charged off on account of depreciation of plant and machinery $9,000,000, and has added to its plant, according to its own annual statements, cash paid out of its earnings to the extent of $6,881,000, or, in all, over $15,000,000.

There is, of course, a difference of opinion among manufacturers as to the amount of money which should be charged off on a plant. The probabilities are that 5 or 6 per cent on machinery and 3 per cent on real estate would be about a fair charge off; it is, at least, low enough. In England very often 10 percent is charged off on machinery; but if we assume that the charge off is 4 per cent on the average amount of investment on machinery and real estate—which would be somewhat less than I am informed, by the best experts whom I have asked on this subject, ought to be charged off—and the average real value of the companies has been $40,000,000, that would be $1,600,000 a year which should have been charged off since it was organized, or would be very near the actual amount which has been added to the property in expenditures out of earnings and charged off on account of depreciation.

The increase in wages paid by all woolen manufacturers in 1907 over the average for a period from 1890 to 1899 was 31.9 per cent. At the same time the per cent. From the preliminary report Chairman, in this House to make any issued last April by the Census Bureau relating to woollens and worsted goods I obtained these figures:

In 1899 the per capita wage paid employees in the United States engaged in this industry was $386. In 1904 it was $420 and in 1909 it was $471. In other words, since the organization of the American Woolen Co. and up to 1909, the increase in wages has been 22 per cent.

Now, the Census Bureau for 1905 gives the amount of wages paid in the United States in this industry at $79,000,000, paid to 185,592 employees, or $425 each. I think I am the last person, Mr. Chairman, in this House to make any comparison between sections of the country for the purpose of sectionalism, but I can not refrain, under these circumstances, when the American Woolen Co. is located in New England, except one factory, which is in New York, to make a comparison with other parts of the country, because these attacks are made against the American Woolen Co.

For the United States, the average wage in 1905 was $425. For Massachusetts, the average wage in 1905 was $441. In that State are located nearly one-half of the American Woolen Co.'s plants. For the State of Ohio, the gentleman's own State, the average wage in woolen manufacturers that year was $354, or, in other words, we were paying $87 per capita more in the State of Massachusetts—very largely by this American Woolen Manufacturing Co.—than was paid to employees in the woolen and worsted mills in the State of Ohio. I want now to go on and give some other figures. In 1905, in the Southern States—and I want to say that this is a small industry in the Southern States and in many of the Western States—the average wage was $292; in the Western States, $384; in the Middle States, $416. In the New England States, where all but one of the mills of the American Woolen Co. are located, it was $441, or some $150 more than in the Southern States. At least $50 more than in the Western States and $25 per capita more than was paid in the Middle States of this country. I do not make these comparisons for any other purpose than to show that this industry, which is located in New England, has not been paying, comparatively at least, restricted or unfair wages to its employees.

I want to explain that the wage scale paid is largely dependent, or to a considerable extent, on the size of the industry. You will find that in every community where there is a very large industry the wage scale is always higher than it is in a place where there is one mill or a small industry. That means there is more competition, and it means, furthermore, that a person brought up in definite employment is always in demand. They go sometimes from one mill to another, but anyone who has been well trained in any industrial employment always has a market for his or her labor; and that is frequently the reason why wages are higher in the larger centers.

Mr. SIMS. Does it not further show that those who employ labor always get it at the lowest price it can be had at the particular place where it is employed?

Mr. WEEKS. Mr. Chairman, I do not want to specifically deny that. That is one of the elements that enters into all of these matters. The American Woolen Co.'s average wage for an average of 52 weeks in the year 1909 was at the rate of $539.76 per capita, or $10.38 per week. I want to call attention to the fact that this includes all classes of employees—men, women, and children.

Mr. COX of Indiana. Right on that point, can the gentleman inform the committee about what per cent of those employees are women and what per cent men?

Mr. WEEKS. I can and I will do that now. Those were the next figures I was coming to. In 1905, in the whole country, there were 94,841 men employed in the woolen and worsted industry, or 52 plus per cent of the whole. In the whole country there were 72,222 women, or 41 plus per cent of the whole. In the whole country there were 12,913 children—and that means under 16 years of age—or 7 plus per cent of the whole. I want to emphasize the fact that the American Woolen Co. is located largely in the New England States, and let me show what that demonstrates as to that point. The men employed in the New England States were 55,704, or 57 plus per cent of the whole, 5 per cent more than the country's average. The women employed were 36,929, or 37 plus per cent, or 4 per cent less than the average for the country. The children employed in the New England States were 5 per cent of the whole, or 2 per cent less than the average for the country.

Mr. Chairman, one other point I wish to touch on, and that is the question of wool itself. It has been stated here several times that the price of wool has been depressed by the American Woolen Co. or by combinations. The price of wool does vary with conditions of the trade, and for other reasons, as has been stated here this afternoon both by the questions and, I hope, by the answers which I have tried to give. But the fact is the price of wool in this country has gradually increased during the last 10 years. The increased number of pounds produced has been 7 per cent and the increased value has been something like 40 per cent in that time. The increase has been almost steady from year to year up to last year. I do not think that will probably be true this year; but the fact is, we are not increasing our wool output; we are about holding our own.

And the world is not increasing its output very much. I want to call the attention of the committee to this one fact, that the wool industry and the sheep-raising industry in this country is, in my judgment, at the parting of the ways. We have got to decide, as Representatives, whether it is wise for us to abandon this industry or whether we are going to maintain a sufficient duty to protect and preserve it. There are some two or three hundred million dollars invested in it, employing a great many thousand men; the manufacturing industry itself employs nearly 200,000 people; there are tens of thousands of stockholders, as I have indicated, with their money invested in this industry, and we want to have a care whether we are going to deliberately abandon the industry and let it go, or whether we are going to maintain it by protecting it; and, as I say, we are at the parting of the ways. My judgment is that the wool industry is going down if we do not impose a higher rate of duty than carried in this bill. Now, if it goes down, my judgment also is that the American manufacturer in the end will not get any lower prices for the wool which he must buy than he is getting today. The wool will be raised abroad—what can be. The total output of the world has not increased very much and probably will not, so the price of wool will gradually increase anyway for a term of years, but it will increase faster if we abandon the industry in this country, in which case I have no doubt the foreigner will do what he always does, increase his price, putting in his own pocket what he is now paying into our revenues.

One more false impression which I wish to remove, though I apologize for taking so much time—that the quality of goods manufactured by worsted and woolen manufacturers in this country has not depreciated, but has been constantly increasing. I get this information from the preliminary statement made by the Bureau of the Census and published on April 4, 1911. This statement shows that there have been some interesting and important changes in the character of materials used during the past decade. The quantity of wool consumed by worsted and woolen manufacturers, in condition purchased, increased from 330,179,000 pounds to 474,751,000 pounds, or 44 per cent. Reckoned on a scoured-wool basis, the increase was 50 per cent.

The quantity of raw cotton consumed decreased from 40,245,000 pounds to 20,055,000 pounds, or 50 per cent, while the amount of cotton yarn purchased increased from 35,343,000 pounds to 39,190,000 pounds, or 11 per cent. The net result is a decided increase in the amount of cotton used as a material by woolen manufacturers.

The figures also show a marked decrease in the use of shoddy. The quantity purchased decreased 35 per cent, and the amount manufactured in woolen mills for use therein fell off 10 per cent. In 1899 the total amount of shoddy consumed by woolen and worsted manufacturers was 68,663,000 pounds. In 1909 it was only 53,621,000 pounds.

In other words, the amount of wool that has gone into the cloth worn by the people in this country in the past decade has increased 50 per cent at the expense of cotton and shoddy, which have been displaced by the wool.

I do not know exactly what ought to be done about this woolen and worsted and wool schedule. I hope I will have some information on which I can base an opinion some time, but I want information, and before any change is made, I want to know why it is made. Of all fools, the biggest fools in the world are those people who fool themselves.

A GREAT AID IN TEACHING.

"Cheerfulness is an important factor in the teaching of young men and women," said H. E. Hibbard, one of the most prominent commercial educators in Boston. "Efficiency depends largely on cheerfulness, and cheerfulness on sunlight and fresh air. Remembering this we planned the Bryant & Stratton school building on broad lines, leaving a large open area in the centre for the entrance of sunlight and fresh air, and, even though the students may not be conscious of it, the advantages of such an environment are undeniable." The plan of individual teaching, adopted first by the Bryant & Stratton school, offers each pupil an opportunity entirely independent of any other. His instruction and graduation are a personal matter, depending entirely upon ability and application. This school does not send solicitors from house to house seeking pupils, as is the custom with many schools. Its patronage comes unsolicited. The superior intelligence of its pupils in general does not respond to such methods. The loyal expression of the thousands of graduates from this school serves as its highest recommendation and is worthy of the consideration of those who would profit by the experience of others.

Many well-meaning persons who are strenuously opposed to lotteries on general principles do not appear to be exceedingly pleased at the action of the W. & W. Society against one of the promoters of the recent Marshfield fair.

MARDI-GRAS AT REVERE—Everything is in readiness at Revere Beach for the Mardi-Gras carnival, one full week of fun and frolic and pageants of all nations beginning next Tuesday, Sept. 5 and continuing every afternoon and evening until Saturday Sept. 9, inclusive. The committee of managers of the various amusement enterprises along the beach have been hard at work for weeks and when the results of their labors is seen, the public will have many genuine and most satisfactory surprises. Every detail of the mardigras has been carefully planned and no expense has been spared that the greatest possible artistic beauty will be secured.

Everything seems to be going up except the prices of printing. In the going up process of course we are compelled to include the Squantum aviators, and we earnestly hope they won't come down too suddenly.

The Faelten Pianoforte School announces the opening of its fifteenth season September 21, and from all indications a most prosperous year will be experienced. Additional facilities have been provided to meet the expected demands for instruction which are coming in from all parts of the country but the popularity of the school in its home city and its vicinity is particularly noticeable. The school offers especially attractive courses to those wishing to prepare for the music teacher's profession and great emphasis is placed on the importance of those possessing musical ability making a choice of this profession for a life work. So many young people are obliged to take inferior positions after graduating from high school that it seems a pity that more of them do not see the advantage of being thoroughly prepared for some line of work which is immediately remunerative, especially when their studies can be pursued under such favorable influences for general culture as are offered in the academic course of the Faelten Pianoforte School.

THEATRES.

Hollis Street Theatre—The Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, will begin its season with a matinee on Labor Day, Monday Sept. 4th, when Henry B. Harris will present Helen Ware in a new three act play "The Price." The piece is from the pen of George Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the Hour" and other successful plays. It is said that in the new play Miss Ware will have a part worthy of the talents which have made her one of the foremost emotional actresses of our stage. The characters in the play are a prominent artist, his wife, his secretary and a physician. The threads of these people's lives are so entwined that each one plays an important part in the working out of the solution of their happiness. The secretary thinks, she loves the artist, then discovers that it is really the physician she loves. The artist's wife is suspicious of their intimacy and when her husband dies plans to revenge herself on the secretary, who has married the physician. Through the working out of this revenge is brought forth the great scheme in the play where the girl pleads for her right to happiness since she has so greatly paid the price of her error. It is said that this scene is well worthy of the great emotional powers which Miss are possesses. The box office for the sale of seats will open on Thursday, August 31st for the entire engagement of three weeks. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees in addition to the special matinee on Labor Day.

Tremont Theatre—Not in a very long time has the playgoing population of Boston and its surrounding communities been offered an entertainment that is so full of clean, wholesome, invigorating fun as "Excuse Me". Henry W. Savage's production of Rupert Hughes Pullman palace car farce now playing at the Tremont Theatre. And that the playgoing public thoroughly realizes that fact is proved by the size of the audiences which have been flocking to the theatre for the past two weeks. Thus far there has not been one performance—not even a midweek matinee—when every seat upon the first floor and in the balcony was not occupied, and the demand for accommodations for several weeks ahead is so great that it is almost a certainty that the engagement of this laughter producing play will continue to be characterized by gatherings which will tax the capacity of the big theatre. As is characteristic of every organization sent forth from New York in the name of Henry W. Savage, the "Excuse Me" Company has displayed individual and collective brilliance in the interpretation of Mr. Hughes humorous story, and the cast's presentation of the comical situations which punctuate the 2000 mile railroad trip which is the basis of the piece, could hardly be bettered. George W. Day as the Pullman car porter has made the greatest success of his professional career. Phil Staats, as the bumbling "Jimmy" Wellington has scored a distinct personal triumph, while Geraldine O'Brien and Joseph Yanner, who have the roles of the young runaways, nightly earn the sincere sympathy and draw forth the generous applause of every one in the record breaking audiences. Miss Jacqueline Blaney, Charles Abbe, Miss Marguerite Skirvin, Louis Hendricks, Alonzo Price, Arline Fredericks, Lydia Dickson and the dozen and a half others in the cast share honors with those first mentioned.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—As next week will mark the opening of the regular theatrical season in Boston, a splendid programme of all-star vaudeville features has been arranged for B. F. Keith's Theatre, one that is remarkable alike for the number of novelties that it contains and for the number of acts that are new to Boston. There are no less than five attractions of headline calibre, and three of them have never before been seen in this city. G. Molasso, the famous French pantomimist and producer will present his remarkable terpsichorean spectacle, "Paris By Night", in which a large company of skilful dancers and mimics take part. This is one of the most sensational offerings ever imported from Europe, and the action is intensely thrilling and dramatic, and the scenery and costumes are of the most brilliant character. Still another big novelty will be the Great Bell Family, Mexican musicians and singers, who give a complete show by themselves, and everyone of their features is of the most unique sort. Mrs. Gene Hughes & Co. in "Youth," will be still another headliner. This bright little comedy has been scoring a tremendous hit in New York. Walter & George Lawrence, late of "the Com-mutres," will appear in a new musical comedy entitled "Just Landed," and still another novelty will be Frey Twins, in their exhibition of ancient Roman wrestling. Other big features will be Leo Carrillo, the mimic and entertainer; Ruby Raymond, in a new act; Marie Fenton, "The blonde in black," and La Toy Bros., acrobatic comedians.

Grand Opera House—The latest melodrama of army life on the Mexican frontier, entitled "A Prisoner for Life" will be next week's attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House, opening with an extra matinee on Monday, Labor Day. The plot deals with the machinations of an unscrupulous captain to get his rival, a lieutenant, out of way so that he may wed the beautiful heroine. The captain is in league with Mexican outlaws and cattle thieves, whom Uncle Sam's soldiers are trying to suppress, and the four acts are crowded with exciting situations that leave one breathless, notably the burning of the guardhouse and the thrilling rescue of the hero who is imprisoned there, by means of a human chain: the outlaws' fort in the Mexican mountains the camp of the 22d Infantry of the United States Army, a military drill by a troupe of expert Zouaves, a court-martial scene, and the storming of an American camp by Mexican bandits. The temptation and fall of a working-man's wife is the story, which is not unlike "The Fastest Way." A well-developed vein of humor mingles with the pathos and thrills of the piece. There will be the usual Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees, with an extra matinee on Monday (Labor Day).

Castle Square Theatre—"The Rose of the Rancho" will be continued through the coming week, and indications are that the theatre will be filled at every performance, afternoon as well as evening. Th play itself is deserving of a triumph, for it is both an acting and a scenic drama, and its stage settings at the Castle Square are bewilderingly beautiful. Mary Young makes a delightful Juanita, the heroine who falls in love with an American youth, and Mr. Craig fairly outdid as Kearney all his previous efforts at the portrayal of heroic youth.

OLD SAMOAN MATS.

Precious Haircloths That Are Treasured by the Natives.

Among the curious customs of the Samoans is that of making haircloths of mats. By some simple process of reasoning the mat has come to be identified with the family, as the hearthstone is traditionally sacred among the Saxon race.

The Samoan mats are really fine specimens of art. The people esteem them much more highly than any article of European manufacture, and the older they are the more they are regarded. Some of them have names known all over the Samoan group. The oldest is called Moe-e-Ful-Ful, or "The man that slept among the creepers." It got this title by reason of the fact that it had been hidden away for years among the creeping convolvulus that grows wild along the seashore. It is known to be 200 years old, as the names of its owners during that period can be traced.

The possession of one of these old mats gives the owner great power—in fact, it is a title deed to rank and property, from the Samoan standpoint, says Harper's Weekly. It is no matter if the mats are tattered and worn out. Their antiquity is their value, and for some of the most cherished of them large sums of money would be refused.

A Bitter Controversy.
The Shakespeare-Bacon controversy formed the subject of debate at a well known theatrical school not long ago. On both sides the orators were would be actresses, and pro and con the discussion was feminine and furious. It seemed at first that the ardent partisanship of the fair opponents would preclude the possibility of harmonious conclusion. But the last speaker, in the nervousness of her first public speech, suggested common ground.

"Ladies," she said, speaking rapidly, "I think there has been much misapprehension as to the real truth of the Baconian theory. I stand ready to show that the great plays we know so well were written not by Shakespeare or by Bacon, but by Bacon and Shakespeare in collusion!"

Amid laughter and applause the debate was declared a tie.—New York Tribune.

Hired Crowns.

To economical minds there must be a certain waste implied in the making of a new crown for every queen. Yet this has been the rule. Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria both had crowns made for them, and it was Queen Adelaide who was the first to rebel against a hired crown. "I will not wear a hired crown," she said to the minister who was discussing the matter with her. "Do you think it right I should?" "Madam, the late king (George IV.) wore one." "Well, I will not. I do not like it. I have jewels enough to make one for myself." "In that case," interposed the king, "they will have to pay for the setting." "No, no," replied Adelaide. "I will pay for it all myself." And this was the course adopted.—London Chronicle.

One Cell Animals.

Only one cell animals which have no differentiation are immortal and never grow old. Physical immortality, deathless youth, is possible, but you must be an infusorian or a yeast plant to attain it, and one wouldn't even be a clam or a jellyfish for the price. The process has no limits any more than it has beginnings. Life is just that, one-third dying that two-thirds may live, whether it be the single cell or the body.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Hampton's.

Scientific Management

A great deal is heard now-a-days about scientific management of business. This includes the use of the most modern approved methods, of which the handling of finances through a checking bank account is certainly one of the chief.

A bank account means safety, convenience, acquaintance and accommodation and is practically indispensable to any business success. This strong and efficient bank is looking for more business, and, naturally, will give it the best possible attention when secured.

THE SHARP-SHOOTER

By IVAN VRONSKY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the Japanese were besieging Port Arthur there were a number of women and children shut up in the fortress. Singularly enough, they were there, the women by their own consent and the children by the consent of their parents. Discipline was very lax among the Russians, and a number of the officers preferred to have their families with them to being separated from them. General Stoessel, the Russian commander, set the example by having his own wife in Port Arthur, so it was not remarkable that others followed suit. It is said that a number of children during the siege were playing about in the fortress and sometimes among the guns on the ramparts, exposed to shot and shell. But the enlisted men were not allowed to have wives or children with them.

Sergeant Boris Tomsky was a gunner of renown. He was in charge of one of the big guns on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill and did more damage to the Japanese with his piece than any gunner in the Russian army.

With Tomsky was a young sharpshooter named Alexis Petroff, a dead shot, who did most of the rifle work, picking off Japanese who were working guns that were doing special damage.

While the sergeant was firing immense balls from his pet cannon in an effort to silence some Japanese gun that if left alone would surely make an important breach, Petroff was picking off one by one the gunners that were directing the firing.

Petroff was a mere boy. Not a hair had shown itself on his face, not even a bit of down. That on his head was of the lightest of the light northern hue, while his eyes were a corresponding azure. He seemed very much attached to the big man who directed the big gun, with his shaggy hair and beard and fierce mustachios. Indeed, each seemed fitted for his special work. Tomsky to send forth the great cannon balls, weighing a couple of hundred pounds, Petroff to dispatch the thin leaden bullets.

Tomsky kept on dismounting guns and doing other damage to the Japanese until he became famed among his comrades for the most useful single man in the Russian army. They used to say, "If all our generals could be turned into Tomsky gunners the Japanese would never take Port Arthur."

But at last the Japs got on to the fact that this wholesale destruction of life and ordnance was due to one man, and they were not long in locating the big gunner on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill. Then they called for one of the best sharpshooters in the army and, pointing out Tomsky to him, ordered the Jap to eliminate the big Russian. Once the gunner was located and a sharpshooter especially detailed to kill him he had not long to live. It happened that after he was pointed out he did not show himself for some time, but as soon as he did he received a bullet in his forehead that finished his career.

The grief of his assistant at his loss was touching to see. Petroff was affected to tears. The Russian peasant soldiers, who were more like cattle than men, could not understand how a man could weep. But presently Petroff's feelings changed from grief to revenge. His comrades could understand that, and as they saw Petroff take up his rifle and hug it as if it were a dear child they looked at one another as if to say:

"Now Petroff is a man again; he will make the little monkeys pay for killing the big sergeant."

From that time Petroff was always behind the ramparts watching through a porthole for some Japanese to show himself. When one did so but an instant would elapse before he would pitch forward or backward, and it would be discovered by his companions that he had either been killed or mortally wounded.

Every time Petroff killed a Japanese he would punch a hole in his cap. As the siege went on the holes became so numerous that there was scarcely room enough for them all. In time they passed the hundred mark. But this did not satisfy the young marksman, and he went on relentlessly making one Jap after another bite the dust till the surrender came, when he had 117 holes punched in his cap.

There were 42,000 prisoners taken by the Japs in the surrender of Port Arthur. One day when a lot of Russians were lined up to be marched to a transport a woman passed. She was dressed in feminine apparel, except the big military Russian cap. The soldiers laughed and jeered at her. Taking off her cap, she held it up to the light, showing punctures like a cluster of stars.

"Do you see that?" she said. "Each hole stands for a Japanese killed because they killed my husband."

"Who was your husband?"

"Sergeant Tomsky."

"And you?"

"Alexis Petroff, his sharpshooter."

"What! You Alexis Petroff, the sharpshooter who has killed so many of the little devils?"

"Look at the holes. I have had one of the devils for each hole."

"Well, well! And you, being a woman, have only to put on skirts and you will not have to go to the detestable island."

"No! I am going back to Russia, to look after our children."

The senatorial situation in this district, in my judgment, demands the most careful consideration by Newton Republicans. For many years, the party leaders, in this city, (which under the old convention system, practically controlled the nomination) have repeatedly antagonized the country towns which make up the district with Newton.
This has been done by objections to the character of the candidates presented, by deliberately preventing the nomination of others by secret intrigue, or by taking advantage of the multiplicity of candidates from that section. I cannot believe that the rank and file of the Republican party approved of these measures, as I have faith that the average voter believes in fair play in politics.
This year, for the first time, it is up to the average Republican voter to show whether or not he does believe in political fair play.

In my opinion, the most essential thing in the entire situation is the election of a Newton man to the senate of 1915. To be more effective he should be serving a second or third term at that session. The legislature of that year will make a reapportionment of the senatorial districts, and it is my opinion, that the interests of this city demand a change in our senatorial neighbors. Newton and Watertown have absolutely no local interests with South Framingham and Natick, but with the Metropolitan parks, sewer and water, and the Charles river improvements we do have mutual interests with Waltham and these three municipalities naturally form a senatorial district. Just because our political grandfathers had a quarrel with Waltham a generation or so ago, is no reason why we should refuse an alliance now which is for the best interests of all. It is important therefore for Newton to have a strong member in the senate of 1915 to urge this change. This would necessarily require the election of a Newton man to the senate of 1914. For years Framingham, which furnishes the second largest republican majority in the district has urged its claim to the senatorship, and has been met with repeated refusals by Newton party leaders.
Mr. Hilton, its present candidate, was in the field last year, but withdrew when it was pointed out that it would be a bad year for Republican candidates and that the re-election of the present senator would be accomplished much easier than that of a new man. This was a mistake from a Newton standpoint, and it is now proposed to magnify that mistake by the nomination of the present senator for a fourth term, in order that he may be succeeded next year by a Newton candidate. Such a course will simply renew the former political bitterness between the two ends of the district, and render possible the defeat of any candidate Newton may indorse next year. In my judgment, the fairest, most honorable and most expedient course, is to nominate Mr. Hilton this year, give him a reelection next fall, and thus clear the way for the harmonious nomination and election of a Newton candidate in the fall of 1913.
It is rumored that the candidate would probably be one of our present excellent representatives, and it would certainly be to the advantage of Newton to continue all three of these gentlemen in the House for the additional year, which this program outlines. In brief, therefore, I believe, that Newton republicans should vote for Mr. Hilton for senator in the interests of fair play, in the interests of harmony, and in the interests of the city and the district.

Norumbega Park—In the big open air theatre the coming week there will be presented for one week only with daily matinees the latest and best musical comedy from the lively pen of Matthew Ott entitled "The Missing Miss".
The story of the play is as funny as the title suggests, full of laughs from beginning to end. Pearl Evans, the beautiful and youthful prima donna has two very nice song numbers which shows her voice and excellent execution. She is supported by an excellent company and one of the famous Ott choruses which are noted for their attractiveness and introduce many new and novel dancing specialties which add much to the success of the piece.

SUBURBAN LIFE.

House builders, especially, will be interested in the September issue of Suburban Life for its suggestiveness. Some of the most modern types of brick, fireproof, stucco and other types of houses are illustrated and described in detail.

"The Home of an Artist on the Side of a Hill," is the story of how a city couple transformed a rocky hillside into a show place with "hobo help."

"Sheltered Nook—a Modest Country Home," is the experience of a family who camped in a four-acre oak grove in a portable house, and liked it so that they built there, the same season, a permanent house, "Secret Closes in the Modern Home," tells how to make them and pictures and describes some famous old ones. In "The Proper Planning of a Model Kitchen," an ideal arrangement that is not very costly is described. Another interesting article is Boston Theatre—The attraction at the Boston Theatre for a limited engagement beginning Labor Day Matinee, Monday, September 4th, will be the return of Klaw & Erlanger's massive production "The Round Up". The theatrical annals of Boston do not record such a towering success as "The Round Up." Every character and scene in the piece breathes the life of the great Southwest. The enthusiastic interest displayed by every audience is the most flattering endorsement this really great production can receive. The appearance of twenty mounted Indians riding along a ledge of rock far above the stage level is a thrill indeed, but it is surpassed in the great incident at the end of the third act when "Sim" Hoover, the sheriff, and a troop of cavalrymen are shown in an actual hand-to-hand fight with a band of Apache Indian marauders escaped from their reservation. In the last act a group of cowboys are shown riding bucking bronchos. This too, is a novelty never before seen in what is termed an indoor attraction. The magnitude of this production is such that it can only be played in a few cities in the largest theatres. So great is the demand for seats from those living at a distance from Boston that a special bureau has been established for the expeditious handling of mail orders, which when sent with cash or money order and accompanied by addressed stamped envelope, receive immediate attention. There will be no advance in prices: 25, 50, 75, $1.00 and $1.50. Regular matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

National Theatre—Everything is now in readiness for the grand opening of the new National Theatre on Tremont street, near Berkeley street. This latest Boston playhouse, which is the largest vaudeville theatre in the world, has been declared to be one of the finest examples of popular price playhouses in America. The acts to be produced at the National will astonish the public for brilliancy and popularity. The management of the theatre are anxious to cater to women and children and all programs will be arranged with this end in view. The bargain matinees when 3,500 seats are to be sold for five and ten cents are sure to meet with great success. In the evening the orchestra seats will be fifteen cents, first balcony ten cents, and the second balcony, containing 1200 individual seats, five cents. There will be two performances daily and out of town patrons will have ample opportunity to get trains. The National Theatre will give the theatregoers high class vaudeville at popular prices. Women and children who cannot afford to visit high price playhouses will find excellent entertainment and comfort at the National.

THE COMPROMISE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

It may be the Widow Sharon imagined a good deal of it, but when she moved over to the village of Valley Stream it seemed to her that the people thereof greeted her in an odd manner.

All villages have their customs. The custom in Valley Stream, and one that had prevailed for a quarter of a century, was for a newcomer to at once state certain facts to Deacon Horner. If it was a widow she was expected to state her age, her income, her intentions regarding a second marriage, whether or not her late husband died happy, to what church she belonged, her attitude in regard to church affairs and picnics. If she attended the circus and whether she was going to live extravagantly or economically. The deacon had always taken it upon himself to act as inquisitor and then go from house to house and spread the news. He gave the Widow Sharon three days to get settled and then called.

Then and there the good man received the surprise of his life. He had scarcely propounded question No. 1 when the widow replied:

"Sir, it is none of your business!" Deacon Horner had never been balked before, and it vexed him.

The widow had brought four dogs with her, having been a farmer's wife, and two days after the deacon's call one of those dogs came and rubbed against his front gate.

Deacon Horner lifted up a rock and batted that dog. The dog was hurt and ran away squealing. A boy told the Widow Sharon of it, and she put on her hat and went straight to a Justice of the peace and got out a summons for malicious cruelty to animals.

There was a state law covering the case, and the deacon was fined $10 and costs.

It may be remarked again that Deacon Horner was a good man, but there is a limit to goodness. Not that same dog, but another of the widow's flock, got into the deacon's cow lot. There was nothing for him to damage, but the widow was sued for trespass and had to pay $3 damages. She paid it and waited. If you will wait long enough a cow will get into your garden and devour your cabbages. In this instance it was the deacon's cow, and there was another suit for trespass, and the deacon was mulcted. Did he forgive the widow and promise that his cow should be good in future? He didn't. He said to himself that he would bring that defiant widow low.

All of a sudden the village of Valley Stream began asking about the last hours of the defunct Farmer Sharon. It was said that he died of heart disease after a quarrel with his wife about another man. Perhaps the widow was not actually a murderess, but she was very close to it. She heard the story, and she set out with an iron jaw on her to run it down. In twenty-four hours she had it fastened on the good deacon and had begun a suit for slander. Deacon Horner made out not to care, but when his lawyer came to investigate he was more than willing to settle for $100. Mr. Sharon had not died from heart disease, but from the kick of a horse.

Then the fighting widow had to go and put her foot in it. In some way she learned that Deacon Horner hadn't paid his pew rent for fourteen years and that he had passed a bad two dollar bill on a windmill man. She was indiscreet enough to repeat this, and the first thing she knew the deacon was after her. As a matter of fact, his pew rent was all paid up, and he had the receipts to show. And as for the bad bill, it was a windmill man who had struck him. The widow had to give back that $100 to settle the case.

By this time there wasn't a family in the village, nor for five miles around, that wasn't taking sides, and society was upset and the churches suffering. Would be mediators had been to the deacon and his reply was:

"I'm sorry there is any trouble, but I can't let no widow run over me."

And when they had gone to the widow, she said:

"If you think I am going to let any old widower boss me around you are sadly mistaken."

Both sides were waiting for the next move, when the village was visited by a peddler of rat and mouse traps. He had a whole wagon load. As he passed from house to house he heard of the quarrel, and when he had got to the Widow Sharon's and sold her two traps, he sat down and said:

"I'm going to stop this rumpus between you and Deacon Horner. It isn't right, and it isn't nice. You and he ought to marry."

"W-h-a-t!"

And the rat trap man called on the deacon and said:

"Drop it! You are hurting yourself, your church and the town. Court the widow and marry her."

"W-h-a-t!"

A seed had been planted, and it wasn't four weeks before it sprouted. After their first astonishment was over the deacon began to speak well of her, and when he finally made an excuse to call at the house, he was pleasantly received. Within the year there was a marriage.

"How in the world did that peddler bring it about?" asked one of another.

Easy as pie. You have got to understand human nature to sell rat traps, and this man had been on the road twenty years.

LAWN PARTY.

The 12th annual Lawn Party held under the auspices of the Mary Immaculate of Lourdes and St. Joseph's churches of Newton Upper Falls and Needham on the old church grounds on Chestnut street, Newton Upper Falls, last Monday, proved to be a grand social and financial success. It was held under the personal direction of Rev. Fr. T. J. Danahy, pastor of the Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church of Upper Falls, assisted by a large corp of able assistants.

There were many tables where one might find refreshments of all sorts to say nothing of the other various sources of pastimes and amusements. There were running races for the boys and girls, moving pictures, dancing, hoop-la toss, the rings, knock down the dolls, for both the young and the old and no end of entertainments.

One of the many features of the day was the display of moving pictures and an exhibition of religious ones which were highly interesting and entertaining.

Several thousand parishioners gathered on the grounds, where various sports, games and dances were enjoyed. The Wellesley firemen defeated the Wellesley letter carriers in a baseball game.

The success of the day was due to the efforts of the pastor, Rev. Fr. P. H. Callanan and the following committee: Patrick Crotty, Thomas Hyde, Thomas Anderson, Michael Delaney, James Burns, Alexander McDonald, Thomas Rourke, Edward Madden, James A. Early, Thomas Griffin, William Pendergast, Herbert Connolly, W. J. DR. CLARK'S BIRTHDAY

One of the most pleasant events of the summer season for those at Sagamore Beach was the birthday dinner tendered Father Endeavor Clark in honor of the 60th anniversary of his birth. Although Dr. Clark was born on September 12th, his old-time associates, his neighbors in the summer colony, and many of his out-of-town friends decided to give him a birthday dinner last evening as Dr. Clark will be in Quebec on the anniversary day itself. A reception preceded the dinner party and all those present extended their heartiest congratulations to the man who has accomplished so much for the young people of the world.

One of the special features of the party was the presentation of a loving cup upon which was engraved the following:

"Francis E. Clark. In commemoration of his 60th birthday, from the inner circle of his long-time associates in Christian Endeavor."

After the dinner was over the following well-known men made brief addresses lauding the work of their honored guest. Howard G. Grose, Prof. Edward S. Hawes, Prof. Amos R. Wells and Dr. James A. Francis.

After the speaking was finished, Dr. Clark arose and presented Dr. Grose with a beautiful jeweled C. E. pin as a birthday gift, it being his 60th birthday anniversary also.

An interesting incident of the occasion was the receipt by Dr. Clark of many messages of congratulations from men all over the country.

DEATH OF MR. BAILEY.

Mr. John L. Bailey, a resident of this city for the past 41 years, died Sunday morning at the home of his son-in-law Goldwin S. Sprague of 20 Arlington street, after a long illness. Mr. Bailey was born in Northboro, 74 years ago. He was for many years connected with the old Revere national bank of Boston and more recently has been manager of the B. F. Rote estate.

He is survived by a wife and daughter. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon at the residence of his son-in-law, Rev. Charles Merriam, pastor of the North Congregational church, officiated.

LYDIA BEALS DENNISON.

Mrs. E. W. Dennison, who died on Tuesday evening at the age of eighty-seven, was the widow of the founder of the Dennison Manufacturing Company.

Although she had always been of a delicate constitution, she had borne seven children, of whom four, Henry B. of Roxbury, Charles S. of Boston, Mrs. W. H. Lucas of Newtonville, and Mrs. W. H. Lyon of Brookline, survive her. She was a woman of unusual executive ability, though it had to be exercised largely from the bed of an invalid, of clear practical wisdom, of great personal charm, and of a quaint and delightful though quiet humor. She had a subtle insight into character, and a remarkable, sometimes disconcerting power of reading the thoughts and plans of those about her when, out of consideration for her, they fondly fancied them effectually concealed. She was a typical New England woman in her combination of shrewdness and tenderness, of warm affection and cool judgment, a type known to the Book of Proverbs as that of the woman who "openeth her mouth with wisdom and in her tongue is the law of kindness."

Her friends were many and though most of her coevals had preceded her through the gate of death, she had replaced them by the young people whom her brightness of spirit had attracted and in whose life her own is prolonged.

GOOD FISHING

To Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Cummings of Newton now touring the White Mountains in their automobile belongs the distinction of having caught the largest bass of the season. Hearing of the excellent sport to be had on the Lake, Dr. and Mrs. Cummings determined to add to the variety of their outing by a stop at Centre Harbor long enough to test the fishing rumor. On August 30, duly equipped with the best of outfit they set out upon the beautiful surface of Long Lake, and in less than a half hour Mrs. Cummings had successfully landed the largest bass seen here this year. It was an excellent specimen of this game fish and after being out of the water for more than two hours weighed nearly three pounds. It formed the largest of a long string of bass brought in by Dr. and Mrs. Cummings.

Only the thorough knowledge of the sport and how to handle the game fish with a light line possessed by Mrs. Cummings enabled her to secure the prize, as it was so lightly hooked that as she swung it over the side it dropped free into the bottom of the boat. It is needless to say that both Dr. and Mrs. Cummings are great enthusiasts on the subject of fishing and that they know how to do it.

SHERMAN—HEISE.

The wedding of Miss Viola Heise, the daughter of the late Dr. O. N. Heise of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Mr. Frank Morton Sherman Jr. took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Sherman on Fairview terrace, West Newton. The ceremony which took place at eight o'clock was attended by the families of the bride and groom and a few intimate friends, and was performed by Rev. H. G. Arnold, pastor of the Unitarian church at Bridgewater. The bride who wore white crepe de chine, trimmed with old rose point lace, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley was attended by Miss Connie Bruce of Cincinnati, O., as maid of honor, wearing ivory crepe de chine, trimmed with duchess lace, and carrying a basket of pink roses and maiden hair fern. Mr. Max C. Sherman of New York, brother of the groom was the best man.

A small reception followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman being assisted by Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Sherman and Mrs. Heise.

The house was attractively decorated with hydrangeas and clematis, the color scheme of green and white, extending to the lights and candles.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman will make their home at the Drumlins, Dartmouth, Mass.

CITY HALL NOTES.

The ball game between the City Hall clerks and the Police officers on the West Newton Common resulted in a victory for the blue coats by a score of 10 to 6. The clerks are looking for revenge and are planning another game in the near future.

The board of aldermen will hold their first meeting after the summer vacation next Monday evening.

Agent Russell of the Board of Health had an exciting experience yesterday. While climbing the western slope of Boylston street hill the engine of his notorious automobile "died" when near the top, and the machine began to run backwards. He endeavored to apply his brakes but they refused to hold and by that time the machine had gained such momentum that he dared not turn it into the side of the road for fear of a bad upset. He had to coast down this long hill, making a dangerous crossing at Chestnut street, and did not stop until he reached the level ground across the river in Wellesley. Mr. Russell was pretty well frightened with the trip.

ANOTHER BAD ACCIDENT

Mrs. Mary Downey, 39 of River ridge road, Newton Lower Falls, was struck by an automobile operated by Francis J. Lowery, Jr., of Fairbanks street, Wellesley, and containing seven passengers, on Washington street at the corner of Wales, last Monday evening and was almost instantly killed.

At the time of the accident Mrs. Downey was seeing some visiting friends away on an electric car.

With Mrs. Downey at the time was her little 7 year old daughter. They were standing in the road waiting to board an electric car which was just coming to a stop. The child during the time of the exchange of greetings had let go of her mother's hand and wandered away.

In stepping back to look for the child she did not hear or see Lowery's approaching auto and stepped directly in front of it. The heavy mass of iron and steel carrying eight people and travelling at a reported fast rate of speed crashed into her, knocking her down and the wheels passed over her body.

The auto, which had stopped but a few yards beyond, returned to the spot and Mrs. Downey was placed in it and all possible haste was made for the Newton Hospital. When the hospital was reached she was dead, having died on the way.

Lowery, who is well known about the Lower Falls and Wellesley was arrested shortly after the affair on a charge of manslaughter but was later released on bail in $1000, the bonds being furnished by his brother.

Mrs. Downey is survived by her husband, Robert Downey, who is employed as a laborer in the John Dolan Coal Company yards at the Lower Falls and two children.

In court Tuesday morning Lowery's case was continued until September 14th.

POLICE NOTES.

Edward T. Bliss was sentenced to 30 days in the house of correction Wednesday morning by Judge Kennedy on the charge of larceny of an automobile. In court last Saturday morning Bliss was ordered by the court to return the automobile to the owner, which he did, as well as two extra shoes, inner tubes and $10.

James W. Butler was fined $5 on each count of assault and battery on Allen Foley and William Foley. Butler is employed as a janitor of the Boven school and public library, and several boys had been making trouble around the library when Butler was summoned. The Foley brothers told the court that he slapped them several times. He appealed, and was held in $100 bonds in each count for the October term of the grand jury.

By MARGARET L. BLISS

One morning some three centuries ago, when Florence, Italy, ruled by Duke Cosimo de' Medici, was divided among a number of powerful families, the Duchess Eleonora, attended by courtiers, was driven from the Pitti palace across the bridge called the Ponte Vecchio, spanning the river Arno, into the main part of the city. Beside the duchess sat a young girl noted especially for her fair complexion and golden hair. From an upper window overlooking the bridge a young man looked down on the cavalcade. About a crowd of persons dividing their glances between the young man and the young girl beside the duchess. His eyes were riveted on her, while she glanced up at him. They were known to be lovers, all Florence sympathized with them, and the crowd had collected to observe this lovers' look that passed between them.

The girl was Maddalena, the daughter of Bernardo Vettori, nicknamed "the light haired," and it was from him that his daughter inherited her locks of gold as well as an immense fortune. The mother of Maddalena when widowed married Pietro Salvati and in order to keep her fortune in the family, the stepfather betrothed her when still a child to his son by a former marriage. But this young man was killed in battle.

When Maddalena came to a marriageable age a love affair came about between her and Lodovico Capponi, who owned a villa in the country adjoining one of her own. It was a grand passion on both sides, and the flame was fanned by opposition. Maddalena's stepfather, still bent on keeping his fortune in his own family, persuaded Duke Cosimo to forbid the marriage. Despite her own, her mother's and her lover's protests and entreaties the girl was placed in a convent.

Lodovico was a very young man, and it was hoped by the stepfather that he would commit some act of violence which would afford an excuse to banish him, lock him up or otherwise dispose of him. But the lover displayed more self control than had been expected and refused to give his enemy the coveted opportunity.

Maddalena's mother told the story of her daughter's love and misfortunes to the duchess and succeeded in interesting her. The affair was known to all Florentines, who were a poetic and artistic people easily moved by a story of love. Moreover, they feared that if the duke was able to prevent this marriage he would prevent others. Therefore, though all the power to keep the lovers apart was on one side, all the sympathy was on the other.

The duchess finally succeeded in persuading her husband to permit her to invite Maddalena to visit her for a few days at the palace. Instead of days she remained months. But the struggle to compel her to resign her lover was not given up. Indeed, her invitation came in order to unite her with another suitor. By the duke's order Lodovico was never mentioned except in contempt, while Sigismondo di Rossi, a favorite of the duke, was always spoken of with the highest praise.

Lodovico, not being permitted to visit the girl he loved, rented a house overlooking the Ponte Vecchio, from which he could look down upon her and receive her return glance whenever she crossed the bridge with the duchess.

It was one of these occasions that has been described at the opening of this story, a scene that would not likely have happened anywhere except in the city of the medieval Italian poets and painters whose names and works are part even of the present age. The bridge that Maddalena crossed stands today, traversed daily by thousands of Florentines and tourists.

Perhaps no incident in the history of Florence can so well express the difference between that age, that people and this. Fancy a crowd at the entrance of a park in an American city, Washington for instance, waiting to see an heiress driven out with the president's wife, her lover standing at the window of a house he has hired for the express purpose of seeing his ladylove go by. That age has passed, but romance still exists and is as deep set in human nature as ever. While the people of that day were interested in individual cases, we now find its expression in "best sellers." Have we not in this respect degenerated?

Whether it was that the duke, who was only interested in Salvati's plans through friendship for him, found that he was playing a losing game for himself, becoming unpopular, or whether he met an undercurrent of opposition from those prominent families who feared his power to interfere in their own affairs, is not recorded, but in any event his opposition suddenly collapsed. One morning at daylight an old woman appeared at Lodovico's bedside and awakened him with some astonishing and delightful news. She bore a message from the duchess. Lodovico was summoned to the palace to take Maddalena away with him and prepare for an immediate marriage.

The lover bounded out of bed and began the preparations at once, going as soon as he was dressed to the palace. All Florence was interested in the wedding, which took place at the house from which the lover had so often looked down on his mistress, but since it was not large enough the piazza on which it stood was inclosed for a ballroom.

The tournament, which started Saturday afternoon was most successful in every respect the entry was one of the largest in the history of the event and included all the clubs leading players except the former champion for the past three years, E. H. Robinson and A. C. Gould. Many of the matches were warmly contested and interesting particularly that in which Mrs. J. C. Buffum defeated W. R. Fisher in three sets. Garrison gets his name on the new championship trophy given this year by the President, Mr. G. M. Angier.

BEING INSPECTED

By HENRY G. WILLING

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

In college we were divided into good, indifferently good and bad. I regret to say that I was of the third class—bad. The badness in college boys is usually but a superfluity of health, youth and spirits, and when I look back upon myself at that period I see simply a boy passing into manhood.

As soon as I was graduated I sought the freedom of the wild west. Ranching was my vocation and cowboys were my associates. The only thing that I can remember creditable to myself while a rancher was falling in love with Eleanor Warfield, a visitor at a neighboring ranch. This occurred during my first year in the west and some time before I had been transformed from the grub, youth, into the superior being, man. Miss Warfield returned my proffered affection and consented to be my wife, but on one condition. I must be approved by her uncle. He was rich, and, being a bachelor, she was to be his heir. Nevertheless she was sure that if she married a man displeasing to him he would leave his property elsewhere.

My fiancée, having finished her visit, left for the east. She was to announce her engagement to her uncle and create as favorable an impression with regard to me as possible. Then, the way having been made smooth, I was to go east myself and present myself for inspection.

Miss Warfield wrote me some time after her arrival that she had informed her uncle of her engagement. She was not overhappy in the matter, for he had asked a number of questions as to my antecedents which she knew very well would not please a critical old gentleman who had never sown his wild oats and whose ideas of a husband for his niece inclined to the clerical profession. What troubled Eleanor was that he asked at what college I had studied, and from my career at the university as I had frankly given it to her she was quite sure he would hear no good of me. She was agreeably disappointed in this, however, for the faculty spoke very well of me, a circumstance which surprised me and led me to believe that these gentlemen consider unmeritorious students more useful of encomiums than those who are meritorious. At any rate, I have found them far more lenient to my faults as a graduate than they were to me as a student.

When the time came for my inspection I wrote my fiancée, giving her the day and train on which I would arrive. On the way I fell in with an old gentleman who was the only person on the train I cared to talk to and whom I engaged in conversation. He was one of those men who have more sympathy with young people than those of their own age. He talked horse, and I was delighted to talk horse with him. He smoked to excess and drank whenever it pleased him to do so. We hadn't been together half an hour before he brought out a flask, cigars and cards. I was not personally averse to any one of the three and preferred them together. Having imbibed and lighted weeds, we proceeded to play. I found the gentleman the best eucher player I had ever met. Possibly my reason for so considering him was because before we reached our destination he had taken out of me all the money I had brought with me for expenses.

"Well," I said, "I'm cleaned out."

"Come to my bank tomorrow morning," he said, "and I'll cash a draft for you."

Since I needed money from the start, the first thing I did after my arrival was to call at the old gentleman's bank. I found him a very different person there from the man with whom I had traveled. He was dignified. He cashed my draft without the slightest reference to the manner in which we had walked away the time on the train, asked a few civil questions and dismissed me with the remark that this was his busy day.

I felt a trifle groggy, and I feared I looked groggy. Therefore I took a long nap, deferring my call on my fiancée till evening. I was anxious to see Eleanor, but I feared to present a dissipated appearance to her uncle.

At 4 o'clock I took a Turkish bath, dined, and at 8, quite refreshed, I rang the doorbell at the Warfields. Eleanor received me lovingly, of course, and told me that the account the professors had given of me at college had made her quite hopeful. After chatting for some time she led me into the library to be inspected. An old gentleman rose from an easy chair, and—well, I was appalled.

He was my fellow traveler.

He told me to sit down. Then he said that instead of making the inspection of me in his home he had gone west for the purpose of seeing what I really was by taking me off my guard. He was very well satisfied with me and considered me a much better man than I had been represented by the professors under whom I had studied, "or, rather, had not studied," he added.

"What did they say of me?" I asked. "The reputation you left at college was far better than the one I left myself. I don't belong to a studious family myself, and I doubt if you do. I discovered on our trip that you are honorable, your impulses are good and you will turn out all right."

NARROW ESCAPE.

Mrs. Henry E. Perry, aged 70, and her grandson, Harlan Perry Sisk, aged 5, son of Robert J. Sisk, superintendent of schools in Auburndale, Mass., narrowly escaped death in a fire which destroyed the Sisk summer home at Old Orchard beach early Sunday morning. They were rescued by other summer residents.

The fire was started by a bolt of lightning which struck the building and but for the heavy rain which followed a large section of the resort would have been destroyed. With the assistance of the rain, however, the fire company was able to hold the fire in check.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

MR. F. H. PUTNAM.

Waban has been deeply saddened during the past week by the death of one of her most valued, honored and loved citizens, Frederick H. Putnam.

He passed away peacefully after a most painful and prolonged illness with heart trouble at his residence on Upham road Sunday morning, having been brought home from his summer place at North Scituate the day before when it had become evident that his condition was critical.

Mr. Putnam's wonderful fight against his fatal illness which lasted for more than two years brought him even closer than before to his many friends and earned their highest admiration. It was acknowledged by all who knew him including his physicians, to have been one of the greatest exhibitions of will power and sheer nerve ever seen.

The deceased was noted throughout his life for the highest standards of honor and integrity in all his relations, business and social.

He represented the highest type of the American business and family man, and consequently, had a host of warm friends in spite of the fact that his nature was highly reserved and quiet.

His brief life—he died at the age of 54—was one of variety and active interests. A direct descendant of General Israel Putnam of Revolutionary war fame, in the seventh generation, he inherited many of the characteristics of that old warrior. After an education in the Boston Public Schools Mr. Putnam, as a mere youth, went west and earned a fortune in mining, lost it in a minute as a result of a cloud burst which destroyed his property, returned east, went to Technology and there became one of the leading athletes. He studied the wool business and during the past twenty-eight years has traveled from Texas to Oregon as a purchaser and came to be one of America's best and best known wool buyers being of late years connected with the firm of Hecht, Leibman and Co.

He moved to Waban from Jamaica Plain ten years ago and built one of the handsomest residences in the village from the start taking an active interest in all things connected with it and its well fare and giving liberally to all objects of the leading athletes. He studied the wool business and during the past twenty-eight years has traveled from Texas to Oregon as a purchaser and came to be one of America's best and best known wool buyers being of late years connected with the firm of Hecht, Leibman and Co.

He was a member of the building committee and one of the trustees of the new Union Church.

There survive him his wife, nee Janet Halliwell of Roxbury, a son David and three daughters, Misses Dorothy, Eleanor and Marjory.

The simple but impressive funeral services were held at his home on Wednesday afternoon and were attended by a large number of friends including many fellow masons and wool men. The floral tributes were very numerous and a beautiful one room being completely filled. The Rev. Francis W. Sprague of Jamaica Plain officiated assisted by the Rev. James Clement Sharpe and the cremation and burial were at Forest Hills.

TO F. H. P.

An Appreciation.

"Life" is not measured by its length of years.

Death comes not at a pre-appointed hour

To end a span allotted and revealed,

But in the morning, noon or evening hours

All unforetold. And so the test of life

Is not a proper measure of "a life."

The test is not "how long?" rather

"how well?"

Three score and ten,—a Century indeed

Can't make "a life" that's worthy of the name

If all these years were wasted. But one-half

Their number spent in doing things worth while—

In living to the fullest life affords;

In working with a steady purpose

high;

In building up a reputation fair

For conscientiousness in great and small

In being honorable, and just, and true;

In making friendships lasting after death;

In loving nobly, giving of one's best,

This is "a life" in all its deepest sense

Which leaves its mark upon the shores of time.

And thus I would the term "a life" define,

Judged both by standards human and divine.

For such a life as this the name you won

Which ended, gains the perfect praise—"well done!"

Newton has been honored the past week by the presence of Hon. Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, who has been the guest of Congressman Weeks. The ex-speaker has broken into the game of golf during his stay in this city and members of the kindergarten class are chuckling over the possibilities the game affords for the vivid and picturesque language for which "Uncle Joe" is noted.

The position taken in these columns last week on the senatorial situation has brought forth many expressions of approval. If Newton wishes the senatorship in the near future without a contest, the best way to obtain it is to give the nomination this year to Mr. Hilton.

Hundreds of families are returning to this city after a summer at the mountains, the country or the shore, and Newton is looking its best in honor of the occasion. The trees, the lawns and the flowers never looked so beautiful as now.

Congratulations to the Newton Y. M.
C. A. on the opening of its new building. May the Association and its noble work, "live long and prosper."

Boylston street, Boston, on Sept. 25.
This school from the beginning, has aimed to send out young men strong in mental training and strong in character.
Boys who enter this school in the lower classes have a systematic training for College or the Scientific School, and earnest boys may thus save much time in preparation. All the pupils are striving to enter College or the Scientific School. Hence there exists an earnestness of purpose which results in habits of industry and self-reliance which are a safe foundation for the working work

PINEVILLE'S
CIDER DAY

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

For twenty years the village of Pineville had had a custom of its own.
On the 15th of every September, in case the day did not fall on a Sunday, a couple of barrels of new cider were placed on the public square and tapped and everybody invited to drink their fill. It was a day of rejoicing and was known as cider day.

On a certain 14th of September a stranger arrived in the village by stage. It was not so uncommon for strangers to arrive, but this was an uncommon man. He had a clubfoot;
he had but one eye; he had a voice like the bellow of a bull; he had but one eyebrow. His personal appearance was freely commented on, as is the way of the villagers, and there was great curiosity to know who he was and what had brought him there.

The stranger was limping around town next day when the cider was brought in and the rejoicings began, but he paid no attention until afternoon. Then the men had begun to warm up and grin and laugh and slap each other on the back. Firecrackers were thrown under the stranger's feet, and when he voiced his displeasure he was laughed and jeered at. Then he got a hand on his back and was challenged to a wrestling match and a trial of cuffing off hats. He was invited to drink prosperity to Pineville in a dipper of new cider, and when he refused to do so a quantity was poured on his hat.

The stranger was a good sweeper, and he swore. He stood on the public square and swore, and he sat on the tavern veranda and swore, and he looked himself in his room and swore.
All day the town made merry, as per custom, and next day some of the leading citizens called to make excuses.
The stranger had hired a rig and departed after an early breakfast.

Pineville wanted a railroad. It had wanted one for years and at times had had strong hopes. The trouble was in the hills half surrounding it.
There must be a costly tunnel. Engineers had come and estimated and reported, and the cost had been considered too high. A new and greater effort was now on foot, and three days after cider day a large and enthusiastic mass meeting was held. At this meeting a greater sum was pledged than ever before, and a delegate was sent to the headquarters of the P. and F. railroad to lay the matter before the proper officials. The line to Pineville, if built, would be a branch. The delegate was politely received and listened to and then told that a larger delegation had better come down. Indeed, the names of seven of his fellow townsmen were given him, and they would be received and the matter gone into.

When the delegation reached the city it was informed that if Pineville got its branch it would be through a certain capitalist, who would give them audience half an hour later. He did so. They filed into his office and up to his desk to find the man of the club-foot. He had a smile on his face, but they did not like the smile. He spoke honeyed words, but at the same time he had the door locked and three stout men brought in.

"Glad to see you, gentlemen—very glad," he said to the delegation as a whole. "You may perhaps remember that I visited your pleasant little town the other day. Very nice town; very nice town. Very enterprising people.
Very charming custom you have up there."

"Sir," replied Deacon Harrison, who had been appointed spokesman for the delegation, "if perchance our people made too merry?"

"Oh, no, no, no! I love merry people."

"It was our cider day, you know."
"Certainly, certainly—plenty of cider and plenty of merriment. So you came to see about a branch line to your town? Well, after an exhibition of a little custom of my own we will proceed to talk. There's the pail and dipper. Help yourselves."

None of the seven ever knew what the nature of the contents of the pail were. Deacon Harrison drank first, and he looked weary as he turned away. The weariness went down through the line.

"Now for some merriment," said the clubfooted man as he nodded to his three stout retainers.

The trio moved. They cuffed off hats. They slapped the delegates on the back. They gave them the iron elbow. They hustled them up and down and across and laughed and jeered. After ten minutes the boss held up his hand and said:

"The gentlemen must be thirsty. Before there is further merriment give them more drink."

When the said "merriment" ceased there was no man of the seven who could stand on his legs. They had been hustled for fair. As they sat breathing hard and wondering what was coming next the capitalist chuckled and laughed and said:

"This is all, gentlemen. You don't need a railroad to Pineville. You have your cider day, and that's better. As you probably have important engagements elsewhere I will now excuse you."

There was fighting all over town next day. On the next after that there was a public meeting to abolish cider day, and if you are looking for trouble you enter the town some day and ask why it hasn't a railroad.

Hollis Street Theatre—Miss Helen Ware will begin the second week of her engagement at the Hollis street theatre next Monday evening in George Broadhurst's new play "The Price." There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. "The Price" is a modern drama in three acts and Henry B. Harris has selected the company to support Miss Ware with such care that an absolutely perfect performance of the play is given. The stage settings are in perfect accord with the unusual play and its performance. Those who remember Helen Ware as Annie Jeffries in
"The Third Degree" will realize that as an emotional actress she has power excelled by few players on the stage today. It takes a big play and a big part to give scope to her talents. Yet in "The Price" Mr. Broadhurst has succeeded in providing just the sort of a drama in which Miss Ware appears to the best advantage. The part of Ethel Toscani, which Miss Ware created, is big, human and touching. It makes an irresistible appeal to the audience and through the tremendous scene which caps the story of the play she holds her audience spellbound. It is a character study to be long remembered by those so fortunate as to see it. "The Price" is the first play in which Miss Ware has appeared in this city as a star, and in it Mr. Harris has given her a play which is worthy of the talent that gained her that eminent position.

Castle Square Theatre—The romance of "The Rose of the Rancho" will be succeeded by the farcical humor of "Her Husband's Wife" at the Castle Square. This play was originally produced in New York by Henry Miller last season, and it made an immediate success. It will be given by Mr. Craig at the Castle Square for the first time in Boston, and it promises to create a genuine sensation. The plot hinges on the little disagreements of a husband and wife, and after many amusing complications everything is straightened out, and the play ends merrily and happily.
The cast will be as clever as the play is lively. Two of the principal roles, that of the wife, and a society woman, will be played by Gertrude Binley and Mary Young. The husband will be acted by John Craig, and in the other leading characters will be Morgan Wallace, Walter Walker, George Hassell, Al Roberts Mahel Colcord and Florence Shirley.
"Her Husband's Wife" is certain to be an event of the season at the Castle Square.

Tremont Theatre—"Excuse Me", the Pullman Palace Car farce by Rupert Hughes, produced and presented by Henry W. Savage, has established itself as the emphatic laughing success of the early season in Boston. Next Monday it begins the fourth week of its engagement at the Tremont Theatre and the advance demand for accommodations for several weeks is as great as it was before this merry travel show came to set theatregoers of the Hub and its vicinity into spasms of laughter. "Excuse Me" possesses more merits than its laugh provoking situations, the presentation is noteworthy because of the exceptional quality of its production.
All of the action of the play takes place on board an overland limited train bound from Chicago to the Pacific Coast and in order that none of the incidents of the journey should lose in force by reason of inactivity of atmosphere, Mr.
Savage found it necessary to conceive and execute some scenic effects that were as difficult as they were novel. It was necessary to create for the audience an impressive illusion of a train moving at an approximate rate of 60 miles an hour, and such a stage managerial feat was accomplished. The rumble of a flying string of cars, the passing shadows, the tottering of the passengers as they walk the aisles of the rapidly moving coaches are all so perfectly stimulated as to be remarkable in their representation of truth.

Boston Theatre—Klaw & Erlanger's production of Edmund Day's western drama, "The Round Up" begins its second week at the Boston Theatre on Monday night. The indications are that during the limited engagement of this piece in Boston there will be capacity audiences at every performance. The bottle scene in the third act is a stupendous stage effect, the like of which has never been seen before. The appearance of twenty mounted Indians riding

Grand Opera House—Those who like melodrama of the kind that makes the blood leap in the veins and sets the nerves a-tingling will find plenty to interest and entertain them in "The Cowboy and the Thief," which will be next week's attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House. As its title implies, it is a story of the Western country, and is from the pen of J. Wendell Davis, an ex-newspaper man of Laramie, Wyo., who is thoroughly familiar with life among the cowboys, outlaws and cattle thieves, with which the play deals. A brother's love for a brother who has gone wrong, and his efforts to bring him back into the path of right-living, form the main theme, which leads to many startling situations and thrilling moments, while the rivalry of a good and bad man for the love of a beautiful and cultured Western girl complicates matters and adds the tinge of romance that completes the picture.

The management of the Coronation pictures at Tremont Temple is not content with a repetition of the same views day after day. In fact, new ones are added each week, and in addition to the scenes of the Coronation, spectators are now able to see many events relating thereto. For instance the posing of famous French models in the Coronation robes is represented, and one especially attractive series of pictures shows the investiture of the Prince of Wales at Canarvon Castle. Other scenic displays disclose the beautiful mountain scenery of Wales. This exhibition is given at Tremont Temple twice daily, at 2.30 in the afternoon and at 8.15 in the evening.

B. F. Keiths Theatre—Another all-star vaudeville show is announced for next week at B. F. Keiths Theatre, one that abounds in novelties and with the same wealth of headline features that is making the current week memorable in the annals of this popular resort. Rose Coghlan, one of the cleverest actresses on the legitimate stage, will appear in a new dramatic sketch entitled "Between Matinee and Night." This piece tells an intensely interesting and at the same time amusing story of that side of theatrical life of which the public has little or no knowledge. Miss Coghlan will be supported by a splendid company, including her daughter Rosalind. One of the most pretentious novelties in all vaudeville is Joseph Hart's "Bathing Girls," a tabloid musical revue in which a dozen scenes of dazzling splendor are unfolded, a host of pretty girls take part in lively songs and dances, and the amazing bathing effect, where a number of shapely misses disport themselves in the dashing surf at Long Branch, Ray Cox, "the girl from Dixie," will bring her famous imitations, including "The Baseball Girl." A genuine novelty will be Staley and Birbeck in their great musical transformation act, and other big features are Wyll and Rawson, the rah rah boys; Alf Grant and Ethel Hoag, "Something doing all the time;" Joe Kelsey, the mirthful man; and Heyden Brothers, acrobats.

Norumbega Park—Norumbega Park is now at its best. Although the season is drawing to a close the park is more beautiful than ever and many are daily visiting this ideal resort on the banks of the beautiful Charles River. The delightful woodland scenery which is greatly enhanced by the landscape gardening effects seems more beautiful in its autumn garb than in summer. With its numerous attractions Norumbega is now drawing immense crowds while other parks of its kind have already closed up for the season. A source of constant delight is the Zoological Garden with its wild and domestic animals and the monkey cage where one may be amused for hours by the queer antics of the monkeys. In the magnificent open air theatre the coming week there has been arranged a vaudeville program of exceptional strength and interest. Heading the list are the Tremont Quartette, classical singers who also introduce some very clever light comedy. Another feature of the program will be the Two Luciers in a rural sketch which is said to be far above the ordinary. They also give many musical imitations which are sure to please. In addition to these there will be other acts of equal merit and a new series of motion pictures.

A Disappearance

By RUTH B. SEVERANCE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There was a ring at the telephone. Mrs. Martindale answered the call and received an inquiry from her husband's office asking if he were at home. Mrs. Martindale replied that he was not and asked why the inquiry was made. The answer was that a gentleman who had an appointment with him was waiting for him; that Mr. Martindale had gone out to lunch and had not returned.

Mr. Martindale did not come home to dinner. His wife telephoned to his club and to every other place where he was likely to go without finding any trace of him. He did not come home that night. The next morning a newspaper contained an item stating that a well dressed man had been seen at 9 o'clock the previous evening to jump off a ferryboat. It was so dark that those who had seen him jump could give very little description of his personal appearance.

Mrs. Martindale was frantic. She feared that this suicide was her husband. Unfortunately the body was not recovered. A body changed beyond recognition was fished up weeks afterward, but there was no certainty that it was the remains of Mr. Martindale. After the police had searched several months for the missing man without finding him his wife reluctantly came to the conclusion that he was the man who had jumped from the ferryboat. Since his business and domestic affairs were in the most satisfactory condition it was supposed that he had committed suicide under a fit of temporary mental aberration.

A man ragged, unshaven, furrows in his face indicating suffering, appeared at the door of a dwelling and rang the bell. A maid came to the door, and, seeing one who bore the appearance of a tramp and being alone in the house, she was about to shut the door in his face when he asked if Mrs. Martindale was in.

"No," was the brief reply.
"Where is she?"
"In the country."
"Is Mr. Martindale in the city?"
"No. Mr. Martindale is dead."
"Mrs. Martindale hasn't married again, has she?" the man asked.
"No. What's that to you?"

Without waiting for a reply she shut the door. The man turned away. He was Oscar Martindale, the man who had disappeared several years before. He stood on his own doorstep for awhile, looking out on the passing throng, apparently deliberating what to do next. Then, starting down the street, he hailed a trolley car and, riding to the outskirts of the city, stopped at the gate of a cemetery. Entering, he walked into the interior and stopped at a lot of which he was the owner. There was a central monument with the name Martindale on it in raised letters. Underneath was Oscar Martindale, with the date of birth.

But this shaft held Mr. Martindale's gaze only for a second; then it turned upon a little headstone on which was the name Edith. The returned man gave a convulsive shudder. One of his children had gone, his little daughter. Mr. Martindale walked back to the city. He had expended his last nickel. Besides, he preferred to walk. Reaching the business center, he turned into a bank and, going to the cashier's desk, said:

"How are you, Somers?"
The cashier looked at the supposed tramp and asked what he wanted.
"Five hundred dollars."
Somers glared. "For whose account?"
He asked presently

"Martindale. I am Oscar Martindale."
The cashier peered into the man's face for fully half a minute; then, arising and taking both of Martindale's hands in his, exclaimed:
"For heaven's sake, Oscar, have you come to life?"

Half an hour later the cashier sent a telegram to Mrs. Martindale saying that he had news of her husband. Mrs. Martindale replied that she would be at home by the first train.
Mr. Martindale left the bank with a roll of bills in his pocket, purchased new apparel and, going to his house, rang the bell. When the maid opened the door he simply said, "Maggie, I'm Mr. Martindale," and walked upstairs. An hour later, after having shaved and taken a bath, he came down, and the maid, who had been in doubt what to do in the matter and was about to call the police, recognized her master. He informed her that her mistress would soon be at home and later that he would go out and order something for dinner.

At 6 o'clock the table was set and a good dinner prepared, while Mr. Martindale awaited the return of his family. Presently a carriage drove up to the house, and there was a ring at the bell. As Maggie passed through the hall to answer the summons her master directed her to ask her mistress to step into the dining room.

Mrs. Martindale entered in a state of excitement, followed by her children.
"There's a gentleman in the dining room," said the maid.
Mrs. Martindale led the way to the dining room, and there stood her husband. She fell into his arms.
At the family reunion dinner, which was later brought in, the husband and father told them that he had undoubtedly suffered one of those sudden lapses of memory that are not of infrequent occurrence.

Forbush and Mrs. Christopher Detroit, survive. Mr. Forbush was also a brother, Frank M. of Newton and a sister, Mrs. Morse of Reading. Services were held Monday at the family home, where many men shared in the funeral. Rev. Maurice A. Levy, of the Newton Centre Baptist church, conducted the services, with from the Scriptures and prayer. Franklin Hutchinson, pastor of the Newton Centre Baptist church, conducted the funeral. The assembled friends much the church and Sunday work long undertaken by Mr. Forbush. The pastor emphasized the influence which he had exerted on those who came under his instruction, and spoke of the place Mr. Forbush had filled as an up-lifter in the community, where his services were without music, and the body was taken to Dell cemetery at Natick for burial. The pallbearers.

MR. JOHN SOUTHER.

John Souther, aged 95, one of the iron manufacturers of the county, died Tuesday night at his home, 47 Fairmont avenue, Newton, following an illness of only two weeks. He was born in South Boston in 1816. His father, John T. Souther, lived in the community when it was a village of seven houses. The family came from Cohasset. Mr. Souther was a pupil in the first of the old Hawes school of South Boston. He served his apprenticeship in the old South Boston and when he came to Newton he found the Boston common, part of which he used. With money which he himself he founded the Globe and continued in business 60 years, retiring in 1881. Mr. Souther sent around Cape Cod the first locomotive and steam for the first road from South Boston to Falmouth, a distance of 35 miles. 18 years later, when the Union and the Central Pacific railroad were completed, Mr. Souther sent two locomotives around Cape Horn and took the first train from the Atlantic. During the civil war the government the exclusive use of Mr. Souther's and the machinery for 16 war ships was built at his plant. His machinery was removed by the Navy from Mr. Souther's plant, and was his machinery that was used in the filling in of Back Bay. His machinery was used on the Suez and the French Panama canal. In 1851 Mr. Souther instituted a 10-hour schedule for his employees, being the first manufacturer in the country to do so.

For more than 25 years he manufactured all the sugar machinery that was used in Cuba. Andrew Carnegie and E. I. Harriman were for many years Mr. Souther's customers. Mr. Souther has made many trips to Europe with his machinery. He was married in 1842 to Olive R. Warr. He is survived by two children, John F. Souther of Arlington and a daughter Miss Ella J. Souther of Newton. Mr. Souther had lived in Newton for 15 years and was one of the oldest persons in the city. Funeral services are being held this afternoon at his late residence on Fairmont avenue.

MR. JESSE FEWKES.

Mr. Jesse Fewkes, for over sixty years a resident of Maple street in the Watertown district of Newton, died last Monday morning after a brief illness of three weeks. Mr. Fewkes was over 85 years of age having been born at Ipswich, Mass., on March 25, 1825. He came to Newton when first married and built and has ever since occupied the home on Maple street. He was a wood carver by trade and has designed and executed many fine pulpits, carvings and other church finish. He was also an inventor and designed many useful articles. Possibly he was best known and loved in this community however, for his fondness for natural history and for his exhaustive researches into early New England history. He has written many articles on phases of these topics and was quite an authority on Indian history in this locality. He was curator of the Newton Natural History Society, a vice president of the Watertown Historical Society and an honorary member of the Ipswich Historical Society. He was an ardent admirer of Theodore Parker and attended his church while he lived. Since that time Mr. Fewkes has not allied himself with any church organization, although living a thoroughly Christian life for many years. He was twice married, first to Miss Susan Emeline Jewett of Ipswich, and second to Miss Catherine H. Lemon of Newton. He is survived by one son, by the first marriage, Prof. J. Walter Fewkes of the Smithsonian Institute, now in research work in Arizona, a daughter, Miss Nellie M. Fewkes of Newton, and two sons, Mr. Charles H. Fewkes of Somerville and Mr. Herbert G. Fewkes of Newton.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at his late home on Maple street, in charge of Rev. Harry Lutz of the Channing church, and the interment was in the family lot in the Common street cemetery, Watertown. Mr. Fewkes was also the author of several poems, one of which is as follows:

THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

The day is spent, the air is cold,
The blating flock now seeks the fold,
Across the black and barren waste
The tender lambskins shivering haste.
A trembling crowd, they hurry home
Where harm and hardship cannot come,
Where cheerful comforts free are spread,
With warmth and shelter, food and bed.
The night comes on and dangers creep Around the fold while they do sleep.
The prowling wolf, the ravenous bird
All through the dreary night are heard.
By Shepherd's care no harm can fall
His kind protection covers all.
The careful Shepherd vigils keep
With watch and ward, so they may sleep.
Then leads his flock, when morning beams
To pastures green, by sparkling streams.
Each tender lamb, too young to go,
With gamboling steps as others do.
He folds within his sheltering arms
And kindly keeps from hurt and harms.
God is our Shepherd, we shi sheep,
His constant care o'er us to keep.
He loves to hold that we may be Secure from harm from evil free.
We are His flock, this place his fold,
His love for us never grows cold.
His children, all the Human race
Are precious lambs by love and grace.
Therefore we our Good Shepherd trust Knowing His ways are always just.
Jesse Fewkes.

AMERICAN WOOLEN CO.

The directors of the American Woolen Co. have declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1 3/4 per cent on the preferred stock, payable October 16, 1911, to stockholders of record Sept. 22, 1911. Transfer books for preferred stock close Sept. 22, 1911, and will be reopened October 6, 1911. This is the 50th consecutive quarterly dividend declared on the preferred stock equivalent to $7.50 per share paid to original holders, making the aggregate of dividends $23,800,000, which sum exceeds the original issue of preferred stock by $3,800,000.

The new home of the Newton Young Men's Christian Association was opened for the inspection of the public on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The public were invited to inspect the new Y. M. C. A. building on Wednesday and Thursday evenings and many hundreds availed themselves of the invitation. On Wednesday evening, invitations were extended to all who had contributed and the general public were privileged to view the building last night.

An orchestra was stationed in the library and played both evenings, and the officers, directors and many of the members acted as ushers and escorted their guests around the building. The swimming pool and gymnasium were the principal places of interest, where many admired the beautiful little hall on the second floor and the neat dormitories on the third.

On Wednesday evening the Social committee, Mrs. Charles D. Kepner, chairman, assisted in entertaining the guests and fruit punch and light refreshments were served on the second floor. Among the ladies assisting were Mrs. Walter R. Forbush, Mrs. John H. Robinson, Mrs. Fred L. Trowbridge, Mrs. H. E. Barker, Mrs. A. F. Emery, Mrs. Allan C. Emery, Mrs. H. W. Bascom, Mrs. Laurens MacLure, Mrs. H. Grant Person, Mrs. H. R. Chamberlin, Mrs. William Macpherson, Miss Emma Page and Mrs. Whitney. The tables were most attractively decorated with flowers and other fall flowers.

The six and one half acres of land, on Church and Bellevue streets allow a full-sized base-ball diamond, cinder running track, 6 laps to the mile with a hundred yard straightaway, and four tennis courts, together with the lawn and general play ground form a part of the wonderful setting for this extremely interesting and dignified building.

The land, arises sharply toward the rear of the building and this high bank is studded with pine trees placed there to prevent the wash of the bank itself and also to serve as a proper setting in green of the deep cherry red of the building.

The character of the grounds is reflected in that of the building. It has been designed as a country club, extremely simple, both within and without, yet constructed of materials of the best which money can buy. The deep cherry red brick is laid in a diamond pattern with very wide white joints. These diagonal lines form a pleasing texture in the facades of the building and the amount of the white in the joints ties the light tone of the Indiana limestone into the main body of the building. Special patterns are picked out in bronze black headers which create further interest.

The building has a very long facade, being 160 feet on Church street and over 100 feet in depth on Bellevue street, and its great size is still further accentuated by long horizontal lines. The building expresses frankly upon the exterior the uses to which the interior is devoted. Thus, the great windows on the first story in the right-hand wing indicate clearly the large game room which is placed there, and the smaller windows in the left wing are set in the same size brick frame so that the two wings of the facade may balance, yet these windows are placed higher from the floor in order to permit of the apparatus such as chest weights, dumb-bell racks, etc., around the side walls.

The building is entered both from Church street and also from Bellevue. The main entrance on Church street leads directly into the main lobby and general reading room, which is controlled by the public office out of which is the General Secretary's private office. On either side of this main lobby are the men's game room and the men's reading room. These three rooms, though distinct, are opened up so that there is a single vista from the end of the billiard room, straight through to the fireplace at the end of the reading room. This suite of rooms is panelled seven feet high with chestnut and has a frieze above it being done in a rough plaster, tinted a delicate grey green and with the sturdy beams in the ceiling a character of great strength and simplicity is given, which is in harmony with the uses to which this building is devoted.

The boys have their own separate suite of rooms of which the most notable is their large recreation room, an immense room thirty feet wide and about sixty feet long, with heavy beams running both in its major and minor axis and dominated at the end by a brick fireplace which seems to issue a call to true companionship with it of a winter evening. This room also has a high dado stained a rich green and about the room are grouped Church warden settles. Opening into this from the long side is a boys' reading room, furnished with a fireplace, bookcases and cozy corner seats. The air of the whole place is homey in the extreme and has none of that unfortunate institutional look which is the bane of mothers trusting their younger sons to the kindly care of the Secretary of the Association.

The boys as well as the men have their own secretary from his office can control their entrance and exit from the building as well as the entrance down to the bowling alleys lockers, etc.

Ample provision has been made for all the men and boys who are now members and for the larger membership which is sure to result from the enthusiasm developed by this new building. Each man is provided with a steel ventilated locker with its own combination lock. There are shower baths and toilets in each department and a splendid swimming tank room which has already proved to be a joy to the boys and perhaps the most attractive factor in the building. The entire room is finished in white, which with the beamed ceiling gives an extremely nautical appearance. The tank itself is of small white tile. Both the dado and the tank being decorated by a pattern of deep green tiles worked into the white. The tank is so arranged that its depth at the lower end is enough for the mature members to dive and shallow enough at the other end so that the youngest members may commence their swimming lessons. A continuous life rail and scupper run along each long side of the tank and brass ladders at either end permit of entrance or exit. The water in the tank is kept pure by being circulated through the filters in the general boiler room and the temperature of the water can be raised to any point desired by the use of a small heater in summer and its being circulated about steam pipes in winter.

The boiler room itself is a matter of great interest and is sufficiently large so that classes may be taken to this room to be instructed in heating and plumbing.

There are four bowling alleys of the latest type with the low returns which have been installed in the building. The lighting is admirable, coming as it does from overhead and giving concentrated light above the pins and a softer light distributed down the ally which, however, is not in the eyes of the bowler. Men who enjoy this sport are given their special locker room and lockers and every provision is made for their comfort. A separate stairway leads down to these alleys. The business men not only have their general locker room but also a rest and special exercise room and adjoining that also a hand-ball court.

There are also provisions for visiting teams in the basement near the swimming tank connecting with the gymnasium and having an entrance out on to the athletic field. The men, pass from their locker room in the basement past the physical director's office, which controls this department, into the gymnasium upon the first floor.

The building has been so arranged that the gymnasium has windows upon all four sides of it so that at all seasons of the year it is filled with light and has an abundant circulation of air, insures against some of the unfortunate features which exist in the older gymnasiums. The floor of the gymnasium measures eighty by forty-five feet and is laid out in a baseball diamond, basket ball and other in-door sports. The walls are lined with racks of Indian clubs, wands, dumb-bells and chest

A little verse in rhyme precedes the colored pictures of each bird the last word of the last line being omitted and the picture of the bird taking its place. The clever verses are by Jessie Pope and the excellent drawings are by Charles Robinson. Price 75 cents.

THEATRES.

B. F. Keith's Theatre.—After a sensational three years' tour of the globe during which period he has covered himself with fresh laurels in every civilized land under the sun, Harry Houdini, the world famous jail breaker returns to B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Since his last appearance here Houdini has demonstrated that it is practically impossible for bolts, bars, locks, and stone or iron walls to hold him captive. During his stay in Holland Houdini escaped from a cell in the Amsterdam city prison where he had been shackled to the wall by the local police; in St. Petersburg he escaped from the steel cage used for the transportation of dangerous political prisoners from the courts to the imperial prisons, and at the recent Chicago aviation meet he plunged headfirst from an aeroplane into Lake Michigan with both hands and feet shackled together. Rising to the surface with his limbs freed, Houdini swam ashore. For this engagement Houdini has evolved a new feat, more incredible than any that have preceded it. He is placed in an airtight galvanized iron can filled to the brim with water, into which he is securely locked with six locks. While Houdini is in this helpless condition the can is placed and securely locked within a heavy hermetically sealed iron bound wooden chest, from which the wizard escapes in an incredible short space of time. Aside from this extraordinary feature, the bill will be exceptionally strong. Among the big features are Little Lord Roberts, the wee singer and dancer who is only 22 inches high; the Four Huntings in "The Fool House"; the 3 White Kahunas, melody monarchs from the West; Sully & Hussey, two Quincy boys in "The Sportsman and the Valet"; Corinne Francis, singing comedienne; and other big features yet to be announced.

National Theatre.—On Monday evening the first performance will be given at the new National Theatre, the largest theatre in Boston, and the largest vaudeville theatre in the world. A great minstrel street parade will start from in front of the theatre at noon and march through the streets. In the evening a hand concert will be given in front of the theatre from seven to eight o'clock. An all-star bill has been arranged for the opening week. It will be headed by the National-Boston consolidated modern minstrels with Hughie Dougherty and Lew Benedict, the two famous veterans of minstrelsy. The National theatre has indeed been fortunate in securing these men for the opening week. By urgent request Mr. Dougherty will sing the famous and never-to-be-forgotten melody "Evelina." The sensational prices of five, ten and fifteen cents to be charged at the National have been declared an epoch in the theatrical world. Patrons at the National will witness a dollar show for the regular National prices. It is only the tremendous seating capacity of 3500 people that makes these prices possible. Out of town patrons will find the National Theatre easy to reach. All Tremont street cars pass the door, and the theatre is but a short distance from the Dover street elevated station and the Back Bay station.

Tremont Theatre.—That nothing succeeds like success or a clever farce is being emphatically demonstrated at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, where Henry W. Savage's production of Rupert Hughes' Pullman carnival "Excuse Me" is playing nightly and upon two afternoons of each week to audiences which take the capacity of the playhouse. The fifth week of the engagement begins next Monday and there are no signs of any diminution of interest on the part of playgoers of Boston and its surrounding communities. Several of the members of the "Excuse Me" company have made such distinct personal hits that within the brief space of a month they have firmly established their right to be classed with that fortunate coterie of actors deservedly known as local favorites Wednesday and Saturday are the regular matinee days at the Tremont during the stay of "Excuse Me."

Norumbega Park.—This is the final week of the season at Norumbega Park which has enjoyed the most successful season in its whole career. On Sunday night the season will be brought to a close with the regular Sunday night concert in the big open air theatre, although the park itself will remain open indefinitely in order to afford the patrons an opportunity to enjoy the canoeing and boating on the Charles or to visit the Zoological Garden and to observe the luxuriant autumn foliage which is at its best now.

ALDERMEN MEET AGAIN

After an uninterrupted vacation—the first in many years—of eleven weeks the aldermen resumed their regular sessions for the year, last Monday evening. President Jones was in the chair and Aldermen Avery, Bemis, Blakemore, Cox, Early, Gray, Heard, Higgins, F. W. Jones, Miller, Moore, Murphy, Sullivan and Towle were also present.

The routine business of the board had accumulated during the summer and many hearings were held, mostly on unimportant matters. The persistent application of the Edison Company for pole locations on Remington street again aroused the remonstrance of residents on that street, and Mr. E. B. Church and L. S. Drake appeared in protest and Mr. B. R. Ware made his intervention. There was no objection to petitions of the same company for underground in Washington street near Park street, and in Centre street near Park street, nor for pole locations in Rockledge road and Summer st., all of which were granted. The petitions of the Telephone company for locations for poles on Greenough st., Charles st., and Lexington street and the petitions to keep gasoline from H. P. Bradford, Lake ave., and James A. Cahill, Boylston st., were unopposed and all were granted.

Mr. S. R. Porter appeared in favor of a concrete sidewalk on Pleasant street under the betterment act and it was opposed by Mr. A. C. Burnham for the Dover estate, altho his protest lost considerable force when the assessment against this estate was found to be but $42. This order was also passed. Mr. M. E. Thornton favored and Mr. John Connel opposed taking land for a sewer in North st., but the necessary orders were adopted.

Mayor Hatfield's appointments of election officers were promptly confirmed with 12 favorable ballots. The mayor also sent in with his approval the requests of the Board of Health for a new automobile and of the Forest Commissioner for $1000 for improving the Newton Highlands playground. Both of these matters were later authorized, that for the Health automobile after a little debate in which Aldermen Murphy, Bemis and Blakemore participated.

On report of the Street Commissioner, street sprinkling assessments amounting to $22,365.87, of the Forest Commissioner, moth assessments amounting to $18,788.81, of the City Engineer, sidewalk assessments on Arlington st., Charles st., Floral st., Margin st., Marlboro st., Pearl st., Prescott st. and Waterman road were authorized.

The Temporary Buildings Commissioner sent in the applications of Morris Eried, to alter wooden building on Dalby st., of Norbert Champagne to build a wooden store on California st., of the Saxony Worst Co. to build a wood storehouse on Bridge st., and of J. H. Kellar to make alterations in Players Hall, all of which were authorized.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth asked for a report on the proposed incorporation of the Congregation Agudas Achim Anshai Sfard.

Hearings at the next board meeting were ordered on petitions of Lasell Seminary for underground conduit in Grove st., of Patterson Bros., Auburn st., and F. W. Rane, Chestnut st. to keep gasoline.

Petitions of John Johnston for appropriation of betterment on Langley road of the Edison Co. for attachments on Islington road, Alden st. and for removal of pole on Beacon st., of the Telephone Co. for attachments on Berkeley st., and Waban ave., of Wallace F. Jennell, John E. Rockwood and Agnes C. Linn for appointments as weighers of coal of Michael G. Wozoreck for minors license of Paul J. Burrage for an auctioneer license, of Margaret C. Kirk for an intelligence office, and of Antonio Cellucia for a wagon license were granted.

Other petitions received were from J. T. Burns for sewer in St. James st., H. E. Locke for sewer in Boylston st., M. E. Eaton for sewer in Salisbury road, R. F. Sanderson for sewer in Trapelo road, B. A. Ham for sewers in Grove st. and Chestnut st., J. L. Zinderstein for sewer in Prince st., T. P. Houlahan for sewer in Murray terrace, W. H. Blood for street sprinkling on Woodbine st., H. A. Sawyer for street sprinkling on Woodcliff and Rockledge roads, J. C. Hagar for street sprinkling on Madison ave., the Edison Co. for permission to attach additional wires to all its present poles, Pasquale Colurullo to open store on Sundays, H. McIlman for a junk license, James G. Lucia for a wagon license, Francis Carvelli for liquor permit, Simon Morrell for a liquor permit, O'Brien and Byrne to operate power boats on the upper Charles river, William H. Allen for Soldiers Relief, and of John J. Hayes for abatement of Commonwealth ave assessment.

The bond of Charles Scipione as a constable was approved. Orders were also passed assuming sewer assessment on estate of John H. Grace, Jackson road, establishing polling places and calling the state election on Nov. 7.

Alderman Murphy raised a little breeze when he asked that the ordinance on the table giving the school committee authority to make repairs on its buildings should not be considered until the committee had reported on the proposition to abolish the office of the Public Buildings Commissioner. He believed the two matters should be considered together. Alderman Moore said that the committee thought the matters were entirely separate and had been waiting developments before reporting on the abolition of the office. Aldermen Towle, Sullivan and Cox all expressed themselves as desirous of having the matter given prompt attention. Alderman Heard of the committee said that the mayor was determined to give the present scheme a fair trial and as he had the power, the committee saw no good reason to report on something the board was unable to settle. The city charter did not authorize the abolition of the office, it could only be consolidated with some other position. Alderman Moore suggested that the school committee ordinance be referred back to his committee and after some debate this was so voted.

Alderman Blakemore introduced a resolution that the city open negotiations with the Boston Elevated Co. relative to standing cars in Nonantum square and it was referred.

The board adjourned at 11.14.

STEVENS—COOLIDGE.

At "Blynman Farm," Manchester, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge of "Gray Cliff," Newton Centre, their daughter, Miss Isabelle Coolidge, was married Saturday afternoon at two o'clock to Mr. Samuel Sprague Stevens, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Stevens of Brookline and Manchester. Although the inclement weather caused some slight changes in the plans for the event, it did not prevent hundreds of guests from attending.

The marriage ceremony was performed in the drawing-room, which was decorated with quantities of Easter lilies, white in other parts of the house were masses of gladioli, including many rare specimens of the flower. Miss Coolidge, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin enriched with exquisite lace, the dress having a full train over which fell the long veil of tulle which was worn. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids combined with lilies of the valley.

The bride's attendants were Miss Josephine Stevens sister of the groom, Miss Eleanor Bradley and Miss Margaret Carlton, all of Brookline, and Miss Alice Tiffany of New Bedford, all of whom were dressed alike in gowns of pale pink chiffon cloth worn over silk and trimmed with pale blue, and their hats, also in pale pink, were adorned with blue plumes to harmonize with their costumes. They all carried old-fashioned nose-gays of pink roses and blue forget-me-nots.

The bridegroom's brother, Mr. Horace S. Stevens, served as his best man and the group of ushers was made up of Messrs Edward Stevens of Brookline; William H. Coolidge, Jr., the bride's brother; Thompson Sampson of Boston, and F. W. Barker, Jr., of Syracuse, N. Y. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Newton Centre. The wedding breakfast was served under a large marquee erected on the lawn and connected with the house. Mr. Stevens and his bride, after their wedding journey, are to make their home in Holden, W. Va.

NEWELL—WARDWELL.

Miss Mabel L., daughter of Mrs. May L. Wardwell, 103 Walnut street, Brookline, became the bride Tuesday evening of Mr. Perrin Colburn Newell, of Newton Highlands. The ceremony was performed at 7.30 at the bride's home by Dr. Albert Marion Hyde, pastor of the Porter Congregational church and the double ring service was used. The bridal party entered the room where the ceremony was performed to strains of the wedding march from the Lohengrin, played by a trio of stringed instruments. Festoons of green laurel leaves were twined about the stair rail, forming a charming setting for scores of yellow roses. Yellow roses were also used in the lower hallway and in the reception room, the blossoms being arranged in an archway of laurel leaves in the window alcove where the bride and groom received their guests. The alcove was banked with potted palms and ferns arranged as a background for the members of the bridal party.

The bride was attended by an intimate friend, Miss Inez B. Copeland, a bridesmaid and the groom was attended by Mr. Clarence E. Sherman as best man. The bride wore an attractive gown of white satin, draped with white silk marquisette and finished with a yoke of duchess lace and pearl trimmings. A long veil of white tulle was arranged with a Juliet crown of pearls and lilies of the valley, while the bride carried a handsome shower bouquet of the same blossoms. The bridesmaid was quaintly gowned in white chiffon over yellow messaline and carried a bouquet of the yellow roses. The guests were received and presented by three ushers, Messrs Harold Newell of Newton Highlands, brother of the groom; Alphon H. Wardwell of Brookline, brother of the bride, and Harry W. White of Brookline.

Guests were present from Newton Newton Highlands, Boston, Waterville and Newbury, Me.

At the close of the reception Mr. and Mrs. Newell left amid the congratulations of their friends on a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will make their home with the bride's mother.

GRAVES—SOUTHWORTH.

The wedding of Miss Myra Atwood Southworth of Centre street Newton, and Mr. Albert Snow Graves of Hovey street, Newton, took place last Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. Edward A. Presbrey, a cousin of the bride, on Clinton road, Brookline. The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by Rev. Harry Lutz, pastor of the Channing church of Newton with only near relatives and a few intimate friends present. Both the bride and groom were unattended. The wedding gown was of ivory satin with duchess lace, with a tulle veil. The bride carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Messrs Henry J. Elledge of Providence, R. I., J. Porter Crosby of Jamaica Plain, and Robert Burgess and Eugene Clapp of Boston, were the ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Graves sailed yesterday on the Aratic for a wedding trip abroad and on their return will reside in Boston.

weights and other wall apparatus and from the girders which span this room depend travelling rings, trapeze, etc. The entire gymnasium is in every sense a model of the latest improvements in gymnasium apparatus and gymnasium training.

A cork-covered saucer track of 27 laps a mile is at the second story level and during exhibitions upon the floor of the gymnasium this running track will serve as a visitor's gallery. The running track is hung from the girders by suspension rods, thus leaving the entire floor free from obstructions.

The second floor of the building contains an auditorium finished in charming tones of French gray and ivory white.

and is provided with an ample stage, proscenium and foot lights for address- es or amateur shows to be given by the members. The hall is so arranged that it may seat as small an audience as 180 or be enlarged to a seating capacity of about 300. A series of classrooms, three of which can be thrown together into another small hall, a meeting room for the Board of Directors, and ladies of the Auxiliary, Camera Club room, and kitchen, comprise the accommodation of this second story.

In the third story there are thirty-four dormitories, many of which are already occupied or spoken for by men who desire to live in this locality and have the advantages of such a club. The dormitories are tastefully furnished with a couch bed, chiffonier, tables, chairs, etc. and on the same floor are trunk rooms, linen closets, shower and toilet rooms.

There are also a suite of two rooms with a private bath which in general will be kept ready for such speakers or visitors as the Association wish to extend their courtesy.

The enthusiasm which both members and non-members have displayed in the few days that the building has been open insures beyond question a very healthful life and great development of this work in the city.

The building has been constructed at a cost of $150,000 exclusive of furnishings.

The architects were Brainerd and Leeds of Boston, Mr. Edmund I. Leeds of this city being in direct charge. Mr. H. J. Kellaway of Newton Centre had charge of the landscape gardening.

HELD UP.

While returning home shortly after midnight Friday night, John Romaszkievicz of 29 Linden street, Upper Falls, an official interpreter in the police court, was held up by three men near the corner of Rockland place and Boylston street. Although none of his valuable jewelry was stolen he was pushed about the street until the men took fright. It is thought that the men had been in court and had a grudge against the interpreter.

They asked Romaszkievicz for a match and on being supplied grabbed him and began cursing him and pushing him about the street. He managed to free himself from their grasp and made for home. The strangers followed him a short distance, but were frightened away.

At the time of the holdup he was wearing a large diamond stickpin, but he freed himself before the men had time to take it, and he also wore his watch in his outside top pocket, which he also held onto. The police were notified on his arrival home, but the men had made good their escape.

Castle Square Theatre—"Beverly of Graustark", a dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's novel of the same name, will have its first production at the Castle Square on Monday. It all concerns the fortunes of an American heiress who is travelling through Europe. On the way from St. Petersburg to Graustark, she is waylaid by a band of outlaws, and the leader having saved her life at the risk of his own thereafter plays a large part in the remaining acts. Secretary of the Commonwealth, Albert Perkins Langtry of Springfield, whose name will appear on the ballots at the coming primaries for Republican nomination, has been chosen by a large majority of the Republican members of the present legislature in caucus as their candidate for the office, made unexpectedly vacant by death, he received the full party vote at the subsequent election. His capacity for the office has been strikingly manifested during the past few weeks in his administration of the new primary law, which has just become operative. This law, framed by the committee of the legislature of which Mr.
Langtry had been House Chairman, placed a large amount of new and detailed work on the office of the Secretary. Mr. Langtry has managed the work and solved the multitude of new and vexatious questions which have arisen, so that there has been neither slip nor error, although involving three times the labor of the ordinary state election. In addition to proven capacity for office, Mr. Langtry has a long career as a successful newspaper editor and the Springfield Union is one of the strongest papers in the western part of the state. It should also be remembered that Mr. Langtry is the sole candidate who resides west of the Boston district, a fact which should be recognized in making up the Republican state ticket.

Republicans should vote for Mr. Langtry for their candidate therefore, because he has proved himself amply able to fill the office, because he is a man of high character, because he has served the state and party, honorably and well and because his selection will balance the state ticket on the ground of locality.

The men and youth of this city are to be congratulated, not alone on the completion and opening for use of the splendid building and plant of the Newton Young Men's Christian Association, but on the spirit of brotherhood, which has been developed and broadened during the past years by the work for the building.

Here we have a magnificent clubhouse complete in every detail for the religious, moral and physical well being of the men and boys of this city, and in charge of capable and enthusiastic men as directors and officers. It will be strange, indeed, in a city of the high civic standing as Newton, if such a plant and such a corps of men cannot do wonderful work towards making good citizens of the coming generations of men. It is not enough to train them physically, but that is by no means to be neglected, but it should be added the moral and religious inspiration, which forms the warp and woof of high character. May the triangular symbol of the Young Men's Christian Association, be the most conspicuous feature of this city for many years to come.

1000 new members in 5 days will be the slogan of the Membership committee of the Newton Y. M. C. A., when it starts its campaign next week. The unequaled athletic, social and dormitory advantages which the new building and grounds will afford to the men and boys of this city should be widely advertised, in order that the greatest good may come from the splendid work which the officers and directors of the Association have done for the past two years. Let everyone spread the good news and aid the committee in its task. Membership fee for boys 12 to 18 years is $2. per year, which includes house privileges, games, socials, entertainments, and playground for younger boys. Use of gymnasium, athletic field and swimming pool will cost $4 additional. The regular membership fee for men is $3 per year. Swimming tank, $5 additional, gymnasium, $7 additional, or both pool and gymnasium $9 additional.

There has been a large amount of deservingly complaints in this city the past few weeks over the general stealing of small fruits and vegetables from the yards of the Fort River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy on Monday, September 25 at 12.30 P. M. Miss Dorothy Whitely, a niece of Mayor Hatfield will christen the boat.

MR. ELLIS INJURED

Representative George H. Ellis of West Newton and Miss Gertrude Bailey of South Weymouth were injured when Mr. Ellis' automobile upset on the state highway Saturday afternoon two miles east of Northboro.

Mr. Ellis is suffering from many bruises and from serious shock and Miss Bailey sustained a broken collarbone. Both were pinned beneath the auto for some time.

Mr. Ellis was operating his machine and was bound for Barre, accompanyed by Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. E. A. Merriam of Cambridge, Miss Annie Shaw of Newton and Miss Bailey. The machine skidded and turned over into a gully at the side of the road, with Mr. Ellis and Miss Bailey beneath it.

The other members of the party, being unhurt, obtained help and Mr. Ellis and Miss Bailey were taken by a passing auto to the Marlboro hospital. The auto is badly damaged.

Mr. Ellis was brought home from the Hospital on Wednesday and has recovered sufficiently to give some attention to business.

DOHERTY FOR MAYOR.

At a meeting of the democratic ward committees William J. Doherty of Broadway, Newtonville, was unanimously nominated for mayor.

The candidates for representative, Timothy D. Murphy, Daniel Buckley and John J. Madden, addressed the meeting. It was voted to hold open-air rallies all over the city and make a campaign to get several hundred more into the fold by registration.

Mr. Doherty has been an alderman for five years and has resided in this city for 17 years, coming from Watertown. He is chief clerk in the freight department of the Fitchburg division.

95 lbs, no boy weighing over 95 lbs, or being over 14 years of age.

A Senior Soccer team will be organized to play Saturday afternoons.

A Playground Field Day is planned for September 23rd. The program will include: basketball, (for girls); baseball throwing for boys; all-round track tre; finals of the tennis tournaments;

soccer football game, between the Newton Centre Senior team and an out of town team.

POLICE NOTES.

Herbert T. Fuller, age 25, of Walnut street, Newton Center, was arraigned in court Saturday morning before Judge Kennedy, charged with assault and battery on Margaret Kelly, 10 years of age, and Florence Healey, 17, imposed, which he paid.

The store of Sweet & Co. at the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Washington street, was broken into last Friday evening. The wire of the telephone was cut, the money box was rifled and considerable candy and gum were stolen. It was later discovered that the store of Sherman N. & C. L.
Sears, at 2370 Washington street, Lower Falls was entered by the use of skeleton keys and fountain pens, cigars and cigarettes were stolen and a pound of ice cream was eaten on the premises.
It is thought by the police that both stores were entered by boys, by means of keys.

Harry Salmon of Boston was arrested Saturday afternoon by officer Engess, charged with trespassing on the grounds of M. H. Gulesian, 85 Commonwealth avenue, Chestnut Hill. When arrested he had over his shoulder a bagful of apples and pears which he took from that estate. In the police court Monday morning, before Judge Kennedy, a fine of $5 was imposed, which he paid.

James Manning and Francis Nally of Nonantum and Arthur McPhail of Watertown were in court Monday morning, charged with breaking and entering the store of Augusto Avantaggio, 839 Washington street, Newtonville, and stealing cigars, cigarettes and candies. Judge Kennedy gave the lads a strong lecture and discharged them.

Francis J. Lowery, a Wellesley clau-surer, was given a hearing on a charge of manslaughter, in the Newton court Wednesday, and was found not guilty and discharged. The charge resulted from an accident that caused the death of Mrs. Mary Downey at Newton Lower Falls on Labor Day. The automobile was one of several that had been engaged by Rev. P. H. Callahan, pastor of St. John's parish, Wellesley, to carry passengers at a parish field day. Mrs.
Downey was on her way home from the picnic when she was killed.

Testimony was given by several persons who were in the machine. They upheld Lowery in saying that the woman stepped in front of the automobile after a friend who was across the street had called to her.

A COUNTRY FIRE

A recent experience with a fire in a small country village has brought to me a strong realization that the fear my country friends have always manifested in this respect was well founded. Strolling early one evening last week, the sudden ringing of the church bell caused casual guesses of a possible church or town meeting, and it was not until a boy running down the road, mentioned "fire" that we really woke up. Inquiries at a nearby house which had received the news by telephone—and by the way—the country method of giving information is rather unique—one long ring on the telephone will ring all the subscribers on that line some 13 or 15, and one message is sufficient for all—and we learned that the fire was in Everett's barn, a short half mile away.

We started for it on the run, but soon the country roads and hills, took the hurry out of our ambition, and we were glad to fall back on a fast walk.
Passing the one store, a hustle was noticed and considerable clashing of tinware, which seemed unaccountable, until arriving at the fire we found that every person had brought either a bucket, a pail or a barrel. The town was without apparatus or firemen, but everyone turned out to help their neighbor in his trouble. We were among the first to arrive, and only a little white smoke was visible around the barn, which stood some 30 feet from the road and only 20 feet from the gable of the house.

The live stock and wagons had been removed and a few men were endeavoring to locate the fire, which was in the hay mow. The women were on the piazza watching the men in the barn, and only a city diffidence kept me from suggesting to them that wet blankets ought to be hung outside the windows and plenty of water taken upstairs in tubs. Soon the smoke began to turn pink and then red and the word was passed around that the barn was going and it was time to save the house. By this time 50 or 60 men and boys had arrived and there was a scramble for water. The horse trough on the roadside, fed from springs on the hillside was soon empty, and a tank at a neighbors house was soon drawn down. Water was then obtained from a brook, some 100 yards from the barn down quite a steep hill. Everyone worked except the town grouch, who stood around with his hands in his pockets and evidently would have found fault with the work, had he been able to induce anyone to talk with him. One lame fellow, did valiant service in carrying pails of water up the hillside, limping along as fast as he could. Later he helped on the pumps, stayed up all night watching the embers, and when seen the next morning, modestly said he guessed it was about time to take a nap. Another young man, who had done a hard day's work, and had just returned from a long drive, was among the first on the scene and was busy every minute of the time. One man, who had just returned from a hard trip to get a cow at a distant pasture, refused to stop for his supper, and taking a drink of cocoa and a few crackers hurried to the fire, saying that if it was his barn he would want all the help as quickly as possible. This was the spirit which seemed to animate everyone there. No thought of personal comfort or inconvenience, but only a desire to help where help was needed. It was a most inspiring evidence of the brotherly and sisterly love. For even the ladies there full share. Returning from a trip for water I noticed that the ladies of my party had left the roadside and I found them, with many others, bringing things out of the house, which was then threatened with destruction. One young lady brought out a huge hand-box, which she was cautioned held the "best hat". Another frail girl brought out a large feather bed and all made many trips until ordered out of the house on account of the danger. I gathered a few parcels while in the building and carefully placed them on an upturned mirror on the roadside, where I thought they would be well looked after. In the meantime, a small bicycle pump was attached to a small house and several men took turns in sending a small spray of water from the attic window in the gable, in the face of an intense heat from the burning furn. On the second floor, a little larger pump was being worked, but the stream was almost insignificant, and the men frequently had to close the window to prevent the sparks from entering the building. On the piazza at the side of the gable, two men held an ordinary garden hose, attached to a pump which had to be held in a barrel of water by two men, and worked by a third. One man held the hose, while the other kept the heat away by holding up a blanket to protect them both. In the meantime, the barn was a beautiful sight, wreathed in flames which were fully fifty feet high. The heat was so intense that in passing on the road with pails of water it was necessary to protect the face in some manner. Water was finally brought from the brook in barrels on a horse drawn drag. The water was prevented from spilling out as the drag went over the rough ground by two young fellows, who laid across the tops of the barrels on their stomachs. Occasionally one but would slip down, and the barrel instead of laying down. At last, men stood to their knees in the cold water filling the pails which were constantly passed to them and a chain of men rushed them up to the waiting barrels. It seems almost incredible but with such primitive tools, the house was actually saved from catching fire, albeit the corner of the gable was badly scorched and at one time it did seem as if it could not be saved. Only a tin roof and the herculean efforts of the neighbors prevented the destruction of the house. The barn was burned to the ground, and then the crowd turned to and helped out the furniture back into the house. The building was a sight inside, with the slopping of water and the tread of many willing but dirty feet, but as it rained hard early the next morning, it was well the work was done at that time.

I shall always associate that fire with the spirit of humanly kindness which was so strikingly manifested on that occasion, and I shall never again see the possible danger from the fire field in the country.

WOMAN KILLED.

Her attention directed upon an approaching car which she was to board, Mrs. Bridget McLaughlin, 65 years old, of Atherton Road, Newton Lower Falls, stepped from the curbstone in front of an automobile whose approach she did not see on Moody street, near the bridge at Waltham Saturday evening and received injuries from which she died three hours later at the Waltham Hospital.

Her skull was fractured and she never regained consciousness after the accident. The automobile, which struck her was owned and driven by A. W. Chamberlain of Central street, Stoneham. In the tonneau were his two children.

Mr. Chamberlain is held blameless by the police, who questioned him after he had taken the injured woman to the hospital in his machine.

The accident happened early in the evening but it was not until Sunday morning that the identity of Mrs. McLaughlin was learned. When she did not return to her home her son made an investigation which led him to the hospital. There he identified the woman as his mother.

Witnesses of the accident say that Mr. Chamberlain was not driving at a fast rate of speed, but that Mrs. McLaughlin stepped from the sidewalk into the path of the machine. The impact of the blow which she received from one of the mud guards of the machine knocked her to the street. Her skull was fractured when she struck the pavement.

The injured woman was lifted into the auto unconscious and was rushed to the hospital. There was nothing that the physicians could do and she died shortly before 9 o'clock.

Medical Examiner West viewed the body.

George C. Stone, who was in the forward end of a passing street car, and who was an eye witness to the sad affair, said the automobile was being run cautiously and at a low rate of speed, not exceeding 10 miles an hour. The woman stepped from behind a post directly in front of and scarcely more than three feet from the automobile. The car was stopped inside of its own length and everything possible to be done was done by the operator.

Mrs. McLaughlin was taken at once into the automobile and hurried to the hospital, after which the operator drove to the Police Station and reported the accident.

"MORE" FISHING.

Dr. and Mrs. Howard Moore of Church street, Newton, have just returned from a very delightful as well as successful fishing and pleasure trip to New Brunswick. The fishing was all done in the vicinity of Chatham and in a trout stream called Black River. This river is in the wilderness reached by a ten mile drive the last two or three miles being over an old abandoned wood road.

The first days fishing was above two Beaver dams which were large enough to keep the large fish down the river. The string here caught by a party of four consisted entirely of small fish but numbered 118. These were all taken from one pool.

The best days fishing resulted in a string of 26 trout the smallest of which weighed one ounce better than a half pound. Dr. Moore landed one trout which weighed an even four pounds and one weighed three pounds one ounce. Mrs. Moore landed two trout weighing three pounds eleven ounces and three pounds nine ounces respectively, and a third which weighed two pounds fifteen ounces.

VOTE FOR HILTON

A Statement by Frederick H. Hilton, Republicans of Newton and Watertown:

The most important consideration in the Senatorial situation this fall, is to secure the election of a republican to represent the First Middlesex District. It is a republican district and the republican nominee should be elected by an overwhelming majority. This was not done last year however, for my opponent carried the district by only 754 votes, and the City of Newton itself by only 572 votes not a particularly strong showing for a man at that time seeking a third election.

The question therefore is whether he will prove stronger or weaker as a candidate for a fourth term. Many believe he has not gained in strength since the last campaign.

On the other hand we are told that my candidacy is generally endorsed by the towns and I am confident that my nomination will do much to unite the party in both ends of the district. Because of this situation therefore, and because Framingham has never had a republican senatorial nomination during the history of the present district my campaign is considered by many both timely and logical.

Framingham republicans have for the past fifteen years, with few exceptions, loyally supported senatorial candidates from Watertown, Newton and Natick. For the past three years we returned a majority for Judge Mulligan and not many years since gave Senator, now Judge Dana a majority even against a Framingham democratic candidate.

I feel confident therefore, that in seeking the support of Newton and Watertown voters for myself at this time, as the only Framingham Candidate I am asking no more than is justly due the Western end of the district.

Framingham is one of the most rapidly growing communities in Massachusetts, both in population and in the amount of capital engaged in industrial activity. It will be no political mistake to recognize her candidate this fall.

Senator Mulligan has been elected three successive years and during all of that time has served as a Trial Justice in the Town of Natick. Surely the district has sufficiently honored him and should now turn to a new and younger candidate.

Many republicans believe the party has drawn too far away from its young men thereby weakening itself materially. My Candidacy offers the opportunity to nominate one who can and will work for years for party success, as well as the general good of the Commonwealth.

My record in the House of Representatives for two years is open to the scrutiny of any interested voter and its republicanism can be vouched for by the Newton and Watertown Representatives who served in that body with me.

If nominated and elected I shall co-operate in every possible way with the Newton and Watertown representatives in their effort to secure the dredging and improvement of the Charles River in that section in Watertown and Newton.

I shall appreciate your generous support at the Primaries Sept. 26.

FREDERICK H. HILTON,

20 Lincoln St., Framingham.

Political Advt.

DIES SUDDENLY.

Mrs. Margaret McMahon, wife of John McMahon of Willow street Newton Centre, died suddenly Sunday afternoon while in a Brookline car, en route to Brookline village.

She had been visiting friends in New York last week, and was apparently in the best of health and spirits when met at the South station by her son and daughter, on her return. She was anticipating a delightful evening with her family, when without a moment's warning she was stricken with a severe pain around her heart. She stood up in order to get some relief, but almost immediately became unconscious as she was supported in her children's arms.

The mortician reversed his car and rushed it back to R. B. Quinlan's drug store, corner Wait and Tremont sts., where Mr. Quinlan applied first aid, but to no avail. Dr. Joseph A. Sprules, 1615 Tremont st., who had been telephoned for, found that heart failure was the probable cause of death.

Mrs. McMahon was 64 years of age, and is survived by her husband, four daughters and two sons.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart in charge of Rev. Fr. Haney and the interment was at St. Mary's Cemetery, Needham.

PRIZES FOR PHOTOS

The Civic Federation of Newton has decided to repeat its prize offer of last year for photographs of notable features of the city. While a large number of excellent photographs were received in the 1910 contest the Federation desires to obtain as complete a collection as possible of representative views of the beauty spots of Newton, and therefore announces this second contest.

The committee in charge desires to emphasize the fact that the best photographs obtained in these contests are to be kept permanently, probably in the Public Library, and it is hoped to thus form an adequate and comprehensive collection of representative views of the city, which will be certain to increase greatly in value with the passage of time.

As in 1910, all the photographs will be exhibited soon after the close of the contest and will be available for exhibition in various places throughout the city during the winter. The sum of $100 will be divided into six prizes, three prizes for the most artistic photographs of views or landscapes, and three for photographs of public works and architectural features, as follows:

Parks, streets, trees, rivers, lakes and nature in general:

First prize $25.00

Second prize 15.00

Third prize 10.00

Public buildings, institutions, memorials, bridges, historical houses, and architectural features:

First prize $25.00

Second prize 15.00

Third prize 10.00

Contestants are advised that the Federation would like especially to obtain good views of noted historical buildings and sites connected with the history of the city, as well as views of the newer public buildings, playgrounds and improvements in the various public squares.

The contest will close on November 15 and the announcements of the awards will be made a few weeks later in the Newton papers. The judges will be as before, Mr. Charles Copeland, the well-known artist of Newton Centre, Mr. William H. Downes, art editor of Boston Evening Transcript, and a member of the committee. Both the selection of the subject and excellence of the photograph will be considered in awarding the prizes.

All photographs are to be submitted with the understanding that they will become the property of the Civic Federation, to be used for exhibition purposes. Each photograph should be plainly marked on the back with the name and address of the contestant; the location or description of the subject should also appear upon the back of the photograph. No photograph should be smaller than 4 by 5.

Packages should be sent on or before November 15 to the chairman of the Federation Committee, Albert P. Carter, Newton Club, Newtonville, Massachusetts.

CHARLES E. KELSEY,
GEORGE HUTCHINSON,
HERBERT R. LANE,

Newton Civic Federation.

Take Notice

To whom it may concern.

The proposed marriage of Malcolm Hurd is against our best judgment and advice and without our approval. He was requested to see that no invitations nor announcements were sent to any of his family, as they were not desired, would not be accepted, nor would any attend the ceremonies, and also to refrain from sending either of same to any of the family's personal or business friends.

Having disregarded our expressed request, we are compelled to advertise these facts, that all receiving such shall be absolutely at liberty to treat them as each may personally desire unbiased by all other considerations.

With regrets,

EDWARD P. HURD.

SUICIDE.

Mary Healey, 28, a servant in the family of J. H. Hall, 775 Commonwealth avenue, Newton Centre, was found drowned in a bath tub in the house late Friday night.

According to members of the Hall family, the girl about 9 Friday night went to the bathroom, and for a while they heard her splashing about in the tub. About 10:15 o'clock, however, hearing no sounds, Mrs. Hall knocked on the door. Getting no response she became alarmed and finally the door was forced.

They found Miss Healey lying face down in a tub full of water, with a piece of rubber tubing wound tightly around her neck. A doctor declared the girl dead. Dr. George L. West, medical examiner, decided it was suicide. Worry over her family in Ireland, said to be in poor circumstances, is the reason the Hall family assigns.

Miss Healey had been employed by the Halls for three years. Last May she went to Ireland, returning to the Hall home Wednesday.

CAMPAIGN FOR INCREASED MEMBERSHIP

ENTHUSIASTIC EFFORTS IN BEHALF OF THE NEWTON Y. M. C. A.

BOYS RECREATION ROOM.

Are you one of a thousand? If not, why not? Possibly this question has been put before every man and boy in the city the past few days by the energetic members of the Business men and boys committees which are enthusiastically working to enroll a thousand members in the Newton Young Men's Christian Association. The new building with its splendid opportunities for physical and moral and religious advancement should prove a tremendous factor in accomplishing the desired result. Mr. H. C. Fraser is chairman of the committee in charge and the campaign has been well advertised by buttons, blotters, tree tickets admitting the holder to the privileges of the building for a week, and even the hideous bill boards have borne the message.

The campaign follows the general lines of the plan of two years ago,

HARDWICK—HUGHES.

On Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the marriage of Miss Mabel L. Hughes, daughter of Mr. Arthur Dayton Hughes to Dr. Frederick V. Hardwick took place at the home of the bride at 212 Ashmont avenue, Dorchester. The bride who was given away by her uncle, was becomingly gowned in cream satin with trimmings of old duchesse lace and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Cady, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church. The brides only attendant was a little flower-girl, Miss Martha Campbell of New York.

Their Secret

By EDWARD TURNER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I, being a clergyman, was called upon last summer to marry a boatman about fifty years of age to a woman of thirty-five. The man was a bachelor, the woman a widow with a son about sixteen years old.

"Are you the second husband?" I asked the groom after the ceremony.

"I'm the second or the third, I'm not sure which," he replied, a pained expression passing over his face. I asked him to explain, but he seemed reluctant to do so. I was about to turn away from him when he said:

"You're a clergyman and a good man to confess to. If you'll keep the secret I'll tell you."

"Do as you please about telling me. If you intrust me with the secret I shall certainly keep it."

"When I was about as old as my wife is now," he began, "she was a thin slip of a girl, all arms and legs, like a colt. But she was pretty, all the same, and soon after that died out. There was a mighty soft spot in my heart for her. But I, being a man of thirty and she a stripling of fifteen, I wouldn't 'a' said anything about it for the biggest ship that floats. I watched her grow up, thinkin' that when she got older I might muster up courage to ask her to marry me. But to a young gal like that there's a heap of love makin' before she's even twenty."

"Her father had a feller picked out for her. His name was Pillsbury—Jack Pillsbury—a mighty good young man. He was first mate of a tramp, and every time he came in from a cruise he brought home a lot of money to invest. But there was another feller the little gal wanted, and he wanted her. But Maggie—that's her name—was mighty fond of her father and was bent on doin' what he wanted her to do. She shipped Jim Holden, the feller she loved, and married Jack Pillsbury."

Jack kept on goin' to sea, and so did Jim. Jim was awful cut up at losin' Maggie and wouldn't marry any other gal. She was well satisfied with Jack and always looked for him to come back from his cruises. But after awhile he went on a cruise that he didn't come back from. He was due in a year, but three years passed and he didn't show up.

After awhile, when it looked as if Jack must be dead—the ship he sailed in was never heard from—Jim Holden began to pester Maggie to marry him. She held out for a long while, but at last gave in. They were married, and the boy you saw just now come along. Jack and Maggie didn't have any children. Maggie was happy with Jim, except that she was always worryin' about not knowin' whether she didn't have two husbands. You see, she didn't know positive whether Jack was dead, and if he wasn't she was living with a man that she wasn't married to and the boy was illegitimate.

All this time I was doin' friendly things for the woman, she not knowin' anything about how I really felt toward her. She gave me her confidence and told me what troubled her. One day after a storm a lot o' wreckage come in with several dead bodies. I was out in my boat and saw Maggie beckonin' to me from the beach. I went in to where she was and saw that she was standin' by a body. She was the wretchedest lookin' woman I ever saw.

"It's Jack," she said.

"True enough, there was Jack come back dead."

I took in the situation at once. "Maggie," I said, "there's just one way to keep you from bein' knowed as a woman who has lived with a man who wasn't her legal husband and your boy from knowin' he's illegitimate. Don't you say a word about this. I'll take the body out in my boat and give it a sea burial."

"I think it was sparing her boy pain and disgrace that decided her. At any rate, she consented. I put the body into my boat, took it out into deep water, tied my anchor to the nukes and hoisted it overboard. No one saw me, and if any one had I don't reckon it would have made any difference, for it wasn't everybody about there that would have remembered Jack anyway. "Maggie was a good deal cut up about the matter, not knowing whether she had done right in sayin' nothing to her husband. You see, it made a horrible secret between her and him that was always in her mind. I relieved her as well as I could by reminding her that, though it might not hurt Jim specially to know the secret, we couldn't tell exactly how he would feel about her and my action in the matter. I didn't see how it would help matters to tell him."

"Jim died about ten years ago, and I've waited since then till a few months ago to tell Maggie my part of the story. We had been drawn so together by the secret that it wasn't much of a surprise to her when I said what I had to say. And I think the secret helped me to get her. I want to know what you have to say about it. Do you condemn me?"

"As to the wisdom of your course," I replied, "I have no comment to make. In your action I see nothing to condemn."

"I'll go and tell her that," he said, greatly relieved. "It'll make her feel more comfortable about it than since the secret came between us."

Combination Coal and Gas

Crawford Ranges

The Crawford Gas Ovens are safe. They are lighted in a new way; there is no dangerous pilot light and explosions are impossible. This improvement is patented and very important.

The Damper is automatically opened by opening oven door to light the burners, which cannot be lighted until the door is opened.

In these Gas Ovens there is an extra set of burners at the top for broiling; a great advantage over the ordinary gas oven, insuring better broiling and great convenience.

The Oven Bottoms and Racks are cast iron, and the outer walls are triple—an interlining of asbestos between two sheets of iron, which assists to retain the heat.

The use of these Gas Ovens does not interfere in any way with the operation of the coal range—both can be used at the same time.

Double Oven above or Single Oven at end of range.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST.

How To Treat Cuts in Envelopes. Many of the troubles to which the premature deterioration of tires is traceable can be readily corrected if given attention in time, and as a result more than a little money may be saved. Small cuts in envelopes, almost imperceptible at first, but which soon cause a tire's complete destruction, should be repaired promptly.

The average motorist, inclined to discount the importance of giving small envelope cuts immediate attention must pay the penalty of his neglect.

"There is only one correct way," says the Michelin Tire man, "to repair the little incisions in the outer surface of a tire that eventually causes so much trouble and expense. The depth of the cut should be first ascertained by inserting the end of a thin pointed object not too sharp or the trouble may be aggravated. If there is nothing better at hand a blunt penknife will answer.

Should the cut be less than a quarter of an inch deep there is no immediate danger but if it is deeper the outer layer of canvas will have been damaged. In either case repair should have been made immediately.

Very often sounding or probing will reveal in the cut the presence of small stones and dirt that has been picked up. These should be removed immediately.

That a small stone should have lodged in a cut may appear to be a matter of little significance. But when the wheel is moving the small stone will begin to work its way slowly but surely further and further into the rubber. It will rub the canvas, pierce it and finally work its way right through the whole thickness of the envelope.

To guard absolutely against tire destruction from this cause, the envelopes should be critically examined on the return from every trip. Every cut found must be probed and every particle of foreign matter removed.

Motorists who give thought to tire efficiency and tire economy will find the "Book of Bilemum", from which the above facts are taken, of more than usual interest. It is published by the Michelin Tire Company of Milltown, New Jersey, and mailed free upon request.

Wiley, Chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry has accepted the invitation of the National American Woman Suffrage Assn. to address its convention which will be held in Louisville, Ky., October 19 to 25 inclusive. ENGLISH AS SHE IS USED.

Does anyone ever stop and consider how the English language is abused? As a general thing we are so accustomed to the absurdities of our mother tongue that we do not notice its glaring defects. In an idle hour one day I picked up one of the modern "best selling" novels, with an eye to find fault, and I did.

In this volume is a pair of the most wonderful eyes I have ever heard of. They belong to the heroine and the way she abuses them is something terrible to contemplate. For instance: "She tore her eyes from the beautiful landscape" (shocking); "She rested them on the fire for a moment" (probably to cook); "Raising her beautiful orbs she swept the landscape calmly" (good way to sweep a landscape if dirty); "She threw the angry battery of her eyes at him" (play ball! wonder if he caught them); and last but not least, "They were wonderful eyes of fairest blue and full of the varying changes of the fair Mary's character: now full of fire, now pensive, now darting glimpses of the coming storm or anon flashing lightning glances, full of tenderness one moment and anger the next, they were the outward symbols of her personality." Whew! She must have had eyes as changeable as our Massachusetts weather.—Dwight Kempton.

William J. Cozens has also leased the residence 969 Boylston St. Newton Highlands to George B. Dyson of Hingham, Mass., who is now occupying the same.

THEATRES.

Tremont Theatre—Crowded at every performance with amusement seekers who laugh heartily and almost continuously for two and a half hours—that is the record of "Excuse Me" which begins the sixth week of its Boston engagement on Monday. Reference to the piece as "a laughing fever" you'll be glad to catch" does not appear to be an exaggerated statement, for the contagion has spread from Boston proper to all of the city's surrounding communities, and there is not a performance that is not witnessed by a goodly number of suburbanites, who have made the trip to the Hub especially to gratify their taste for theatrical novelty, clean humor, and applause-producing comedy. All of the scenes of "Excuse Me" are laid aboard an overland limited train bound from Chicago to the Pacific Coast, and the passenger list of the flyer is made up of the names of a number of most engaging persons. "Excuse Me" represents the high water mark of farce production and before it leaves Boston it will have established a record for attendance that any offering which follows it will find it hard to equal.

Hollis Street Theatre—Louis Mann the distinguished character comedian, will present his latest success, "Elevating a Husband," at the Hollis for two weeks, beginning next Monday, September 25. The play is by Clara Lipman and Samuel Shipman. Miss Lipman is Mrs. Mann in private life, and she has won enviable fame as dramatist and actress. "Elevating a Husband" is an American play, with the scenes laid in New York city at the present time. The story of the play deals with the efforts of an ambitious and "cultured" wife to "polish" her illiterate but financially successful husband. The process is often ludicrously amusing, but it also has its sober side, and there are several dramatic scenes that are described as tremendous in their intensity. Mr. Mann is surrounded by an admirable company of players, including Emily Ann Wellman, Charles Halton, Marie Howe, Jessie Carter, John E. Kelly, Edward E. Horton, Sterling H. Chesheldine, Marion Holcombe, and Douglas J. Wood. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Castle Square Theatre—It is a rollicking farce that John Craig is to give at the Castle Square next week, "Why Smith Left Home," the work of George H. Broadhurst, well known also as the author of "What Happened to Jones" and "The Wrong Mr. Wright." was made for laughter, and how well the dramatist fulfills his purpose will be seen by two high audiences each day during the coming week. Mr. Smith really does not leave home until the end of the play, and then he leaves it in company with Mrs. Smith for a long deferred honeymoon. Why this honey-moon was postponed is what Mr. Broadhurst tells us, and the successive situations are persistently comic. "Why Smith Left Home" is one of the few American farces that have succeeded in London, and in this country it has been played again and again during the last dozen seasons. At the Castle Square Mr. Craig will appear as John Smith.

Every one of the four or five thousand republican voters in this city should make an effort to vote at the primary election to be held next Tuesday from noon to nine o'clock in the evening.
The new law makes your vote worth something in nominating the candidates of your party. The old convention system with its delegated government is now discarded and it is the individual voter who now commands the situation.
Show that you appreciate the honor and responsibility by attending the polls next Tuesday and casting your ballot, by which the party candidates are nominated. At the same time, it should be clearly understood that the primary election is not the place for the independent voter—the man who is proud of the fact that he is not beholden to either party. He should understand first and last that the primary is a place of SELECTION and not of ELECTION of party candidates and if he does not align himself with any party, he has no more right to participate in this primary than he would of voting in the meeting of a church or club of which he was not a member.

It can be readily seen that to allow other than party voters to select the party candidates, would throw open the doors to members of the opposite party to enter and by their votes, nominate the weakest candidate, so that the other party's candidate would have an easier fight for the office at the succeeding election.

The vote on Tuesday will also form a party enrollment for 1912 and only those persons voting at that time will be entitled to sign nomination papers for candidates next year. This is an additional reason why every voter who believes in party government should cast his vote at the coming primary.

Vote for your party candidates and may the best man win.

I have urged the selection of Mr. Hilton of Framingham, as the Republican candidate for senate in this district because I believe his nomination will restore political harmony in this district and will place an efficient man in the Senate, and best of all will allow a Newton man to succeed to the office without friction with the country end of this peculiar district. His opponent has held the office for three years, and has no special qualifications on which to claim the unusual honor of a fourth term—something which has never been given or claimed by any previous senator. If successful this year, he can again come before the voters of this district and claim a fifth term on precisely the same grounds he now asks for a fourth.
NOW is the time to select a new man in the interests of harmony, in the interests of the district and in the interests of Newton.

The young men of the entire city are urged to join the Newton Young Men's Republican club which has just been organized. The need direct primary and the present movement towards more power for the individual voter, places a responsibility on the voter, which should be thoroughly understood. Organizations of this sort when properly conducted work for better citizenship, better candidates and better government.

Republican voters are asked to carefully consider the merits of the candidates of Mr. Langtry for re-nomination as secretary of the Commonwealth and of Mr. John E. White for re-nomination as state auditor. Their nomination will balance the state ticket, on the ground of locality, and strengthen the ticket on the ground of ability and capacity. Newton Republicans should give both gentlemen their hearty support.

Residents of Waban are to be congratulated upon their success in raising $7,000 towards the purchase of a public playground for that beautiful little village. Their request for the usual contribution from the city government ought to be promptly granted, especially as more than half the desired amount has already been pledged.

With this number the GRAPHIC enters upon its fortieth volume with increased subscription list, increased advertising and increased prestige in the city. We return thanks to our friends for their generous support in the past and trust we can all work together in the future for united and prosperous Newton.

HOWES—FULLER.

trude Fuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Walter C. Fuller of 279 Derby street and Clarence Royal Howes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Howes of 256 North Beacon street, Watertown, was solemnized last week Thursday evening at the home of the bride by Rev. Charles W. Holden, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Watertown. Following the ceremony a reception was held at which the couple assisted by their parents received the guests. The couple left on their wedding trip to New York, Albany, Niagara Falls and Canada and will make their home with the bride's parents.

EDITORIAL PRAISED

Editor Newton Graphic,
Newton, Mass.

Dear Sir:

It is with much interest and pleasure that I read your editorial in last week's issue in regard to the stealing of small fruits. All sections of the city are suffering alike and it is quite time the authorities realized the injustice they are inflicting on citizens, by the present administration of the law.

We all wish to protect children, but there is the right and the wrong way to protect. As the law is now administered, it would seem as if there were mawkish sentimentality against properly disciplining offenders. The sooner we realize that all offenders—whether from rich families or poor families and they come from both—should be made to realize that there is law in the land which they must respect, the better it will be for the future of the children.

We, as an Association and I, as Chairman of a Committee from the Civic Federation of Newton, have been working on this subject and we have been up against exactly what you have stated in your editorial. Again commending your editorial, I am

Respectfully yours,

WM. PRICE.

Association.

NONANTUM WINS.

The baseball championship claim of the Newton Catholic Club and the Nonantum A. A. came to a crisis on the West Newton Common last Saturday afternoon and resulted in a 10 to 8 victory for the Nonantum team. It was the game of the season and it was only by the hardest kind of ball playing that the Nonantum team gained a victory.

An hour before the game was scheduled to start the crowds began to arrive and when the Nonantum team led by a brass band playing "Hail the Conquering Hero Comes," arrived upon the field there were nearly 2500 spectators in attendance. Thruout the game they kept up a continuous rooting and as inning after inning went by with the teams playing to a tie their wild demonstrations accompanied by the playing of the band could be heard for blocks.

The Nonantum A. A. brought a large crowd of supporters who came by cars, in barges and afoot. They took the left side of the field and the Catholic Club supporters held sway on the right. During the contest as their favorites took the field they would break out into cheers and words of encouragement to the players. Between the periods the band would tune up many of the old and favorite selections.

Connolly twirled the game for the Catholic Club and man after man fell the victim of his deadly curves. His twirling would do credit to a professional and had he received proper support in the field would have undoubtedly won the game.

Gingras pitched for the Nonantum team and although he pitched fine ball in the opening periods the Catholic Club fathomed his wide drop and kept him worrying during the final innings.
In the ninth after his followers had secured the winning tallies he was replaced by Daly the Upper Falls twirler to hold down the Catholic Club and he finished the contest in A. B. C. order.

The features of the contest were the all around playing of Connolly and Barry for the Catholic Club while Ely and McKenna excelled for the Nonantum
A. A.

Managers, Lyons of the Newton Catholic Club team and Chasson of the Nonantum A. A. held a long conference, in the N. A. A. Clubhouse last Monday night to decide when and where the next two games to determine the championship of the Garden City, would be played. After a long and spirited meeting it was decided that the games would be played on the West Newton Common on Saturday afternoon.

The battery of the Catholic Club team for next Saturday's contest will be Connolly and Yates. As yet the battery for the Nonantum team has not been decided but it looks like Daly and McKenna.

WHY THEY DIED.

Naturally applicants for life insurance may be expected to put as good a face as possible on the reports concerning relatives and the causes of their deaths, but they sometimes make rather amusing statements. Someone has collected a few of these which were originally published in the British Medical Journal:

"Mother died in infancy." "Father went to bed feeling well and the next morning woke up dead." "Grandfather died suddenly at the age of 103. Up to this time he had fair to reach a ripe old age."
"Applicant does not know cause of mother's death, but states that she fully recovered from her last illness."
"Applicant has never been fatally sick."
"Applicant's brother, who was an infant, died when he was a mere child."
"Grandfather died from gunshot wound caused by an arrow shot by an Indian."
"Applicant's fraternal parents died when he was a child." "Mother's last illness was caused from chronic rheumatism, but she was cured before death." "Father died suddenly nothing serious."

POLICE NOTES.

In the police court Monday morning,
Charles Hale, Harry Esdale, Harry Edels, George McEnery and John T.
Hoffman were each fined $10 on the charge of disturbance. They were all of Boston, and were arrested early Sunday morning by officer Joseph Seaver on Commonwealth avenue, driving along in an automobile, singing and making a great deal of noise.

In the police court court Saturday morning, Charles Haddad of 71 Albany st. and Kellihl H. Haddad of 65 Albany st. Boston, were fined $10 each by Judge Kennedy on the charge of peddling without a license.

Miss Annie Gallagher of 25 Lakewood road and Mrs. Doherty of 132 Ed-inboro st. reported to the police last Friday evening that some time during the day, each had lost her pocket book in the vicinity of Newtonville sq. The former lost $25 and the latter $9.

ANCIENT TIMEPIECE.

Few residents of Auburndale are aware of the fact that the ancient time-piece that tells the hours on the Congregational church, will soon celebrate its one hundredth birthday. This clock was made by Abel Stowell Fecit, of Worcester, Mass., in 1812 and set up in the old Hollis street church in Boston, a Unitarian Society, of which Rev.
John Pierrepont was then the pastor and was used by them until March 1885.
In those days it was well known as an accurate time-keeper. Subsequently the church property was sold by the Unitarian Society to the Hollis street theatre and a committee consisting of Rev.
Horace Dutton, Deacon C. C. Burr and Mr. Henry Blood purchased the clock and it was installed in its present location.

Mr. Francis Bird Dutton who is now manager of one of the mills of the Penn. Steel Co. at Lebanon printed a tablet with a brief history of the clock which is hung in the belfry of the church.

Notwithstanding its extreme age the clock is still in prime condition and is kept in excellent repair by H. L. Gleason the Newtonville jeweller, who states that it is good for many more years of service.

1830 STYLES FOR MEN.

Suggestions of a Radical Change in the Masculine Costume.

(From the London Sphere.)

Parisians have seen in the opera a "master of style" clad in the mode of the year 1810, from the strapping, frank waistcoat to shirt, heavy hat, flowered waistcoat and frilled shirt, all complete.
If masculine costume submits to a radical change this year it will be a return to the romantic. It will be Louis Phillipe as the feminine is Directoire.
This change will be entirely the work of the French tailors. For the moment the fashions for men have no character—they hesitate and are embarrassed.
It has been the custom to say, "If feminine fashion is French, masculine fashion is English." And it is true. But now there is an obstacle more completely rooted, still vague and undefined, but which will formulate soon and which will lead us back to the beautiful days of Louis Phillippe.

The opinion of certain French artists has been sought on this subject. M.
Sem proposes very simply that the fashion should follow the lines of the clothes worn by the ordinary golfer: M.
Roubille is of the opinion that clothes should be sufficiently ample to allow of easy movement, but he banishes the tall hat; M. Touraine approves of the English mode of dress, which he finds essentially practical; M. Fabiano would wear a Persian cap with a flowing frock coat.

ANTITHESIS IN MILLINERY.

Miss Caroline, just from Paris, says
The small smart hat is higher and smaller; the larger the hat the lower. All black and all white had even honors;
then a compromise for black and white combined; so complete was the combine that they merged into grey; hence grey a leading color. This gives grey guarantee a long lead on other fancy feathers. It is worthy of first honor; it is ethereal, beautiful, and light in weight, but never lightens the weight of the purse.
The "rats and rolls" are completely routed; no room in the small smart hat and the low crowns of the larger.

Miss Caroline is displaying the new in millinery at her shop, 486 Boylston Street, Boston, in the block of the Brunswick Hotel. You are invited to inspect, not expected to invest, though her prices are very reasonable.

BUZZ-Z-Z-Z.

A humble toad in calm content
Sat 'neath his toadstool cup,
A humble bee came droning by,
And trod on him up;

But what has happened to the toad?
He gasps in wild surprise,
And opens wide his little mouth,
And out the humble flies;

But-Z-Z-Z-Z.
Alas for humble little toad,
If he but only knew.

Like many human toadies he Bit more than he could chew.

BUZZ-Z-Z-Z.

—Dwight Kempton.

THEATRES.

B. F. Keith's—Harry Houdini, the celebrated jail breaker who has successfully defied the police and prison officials of every clime to hold him captive, will begin the second and positively last week of his engagement at B. F. Keith's Theatre on Monday. During the coming week Houdini will attempt to escape from several new and unusually ingeniously contrived shackles. Aside from Houdini, the bill will abound in novelties, both American and European. Les Marquads, two eccentric dancers from the Folies Bergere, will be seen in some new and startling whirlwind dances. Wilfred Clarke, the well-known Anglo-American comedian, will present his latest farce, "The Dear Departed," and the Florentine Singers, a troupe of eight grand opera soloists, headed by Marion Lit-field, will sing the most popular operatic airs. Others will be Jarvis & Harrison, the jester and the girl; Ralph Smalley, the cellist of the Boston Symphony orchestra; Tim Cronin, the Irish alderman; and Bert Melrose, the clown with the tables and chairs.

Plymouth Theatre—Boston's newest theatre, the Plymouth, in Eliot street, just west of Tremont, will be opened by Messrs. Liebler & Co. on Saturday night, Sept. 23. The Plymouth is to give to Boston what New York and Paris already enjoy, a theatre where only high class plays will be produced by the best actors and actresses. Messrs. Liebler & Co.'s policy is to give Boston through the medium of The Plymouth plays precisely as they are produced in New York and with the New York casts. The opening of the Plymouth will be marked by a dramatic novelty presented for the first time in America. The famous company of players from the National Irish Theatre, Dublin, have been engaged for a season and sailed last week from Ireland direct for Boston and the opening on September 23. William Butler Yeats, the distinguished Irish poet and dramatist, and Lady Gregory, whose comedies have made successes in all the capitals of Europe, are coming to America with the Irish players. Plays by Mr. Yeats and Lady Gregory will be produced at the Plymouth under the immediate direction of their authors. The opening night, Sept. 23, will provide a novelty for Boston first nights. William Butler Yeats in a brief preliminary address will present his views on the new Irish drama and the new and successful school of Irish dramatists. Then will follow three plays: J. M. Synge's much-discussed tragedy-comedy, in one act, "The Shadow of the Glen"; "Birthright," a one-act tragedy by T. C. Murray, of Cork; and Lady Gregory's one-act comedy, "Hyacinth Halcyon." The company has a repertory of some forty plays. They bring with them their scenery and properties, painted and made by Irish artists.

Boston Theatre—Klaw & Erlanger's production of "The Round Up" which for various reasons has made a special appeal to Boston audiences will enter upon the fourth week of its engagement at the Boston Theatre Monday night. It is one of those good, wholesome things and unlike so many plays of the day leaves no bad taste in any one's mouth. There are some features in "The Round Up" which it is hard for one to forget after once seeing it—such as the quaint make-up and the rollicking humor of Sheriff Holmes, the procession of the cowboys at the wedding and that famous combat with the Indians. The spectacular features are unique and hold the absorbed attention of the audience as the descent of the mountain trail by the mounted Indians and the coming of the morning after the battle. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

AN INTERESTING SURGICAL CASE WITH WONDERFUL AND SUCCESSFUL RESULTS.

Near seventy five years ago a Doctor Calvin Cutter, living in the western part of this state travelled through New England lecturing on Physiology, Anatomy and Hygiene and the Science of Health. (He had nothing to do with regard to ante-dating Mrs. Eddy). He was very successful as a lecturer. He illustrated his lectures by the use of manikins. He wrote and published a book on Anatomy and Physiology in 1847 for use in the schools.

He related the following interesting case, which, if I am not mistaken he knew to be true.

A boy up to the age of twelve was one of the most active, brilliant scholars in the school where he attended and was considered one of the smartest and most promising boys in the town where he lived. At that age it was noticed he began to grow dull, and before long stupid and in time—after a few years almost an idiot. This change had come slowly during the years and in time he was called a fool.

When near twenty years of age he met with an accident, fell from a height striking on his head.

He was taken up unconscious, carried into his home and a young doctor called to attend him.

After a careful examination the doctor found a fracture of the skull with a portion of it depressed on the brain. He decided to trepan at once, and after obtaining the consent of the family did so.

Immediately upon removing a piece of the skull—"the button" as it is called—the boy showed symptoms of returning consciousness, woke up and soon commenced to talk. The next day when the doctor removed the dressings he was surprised and alarmed to find the brain, covered by the dura mater, protruding quite a bulging outward, through the opening he had made in the skull.

He thought quickly what should be done. As the boy was a fool and probably would remain so, he decided to remove the protruding part of the brain, feeling that if the boy died, as he probably would, there would be no harm done, and beside there was a possibility of some improvement if he lived.

He opened the dura mater, the brain pushed farther and the danger appeared to be greater. However, he decided to carry out his plan.

He sliced off the protruding brain. It bled freely. Then he replaced the bone and dressed the head. The next twenty four hours was an anxious time for him. At the next dressing on the following day, he was surprised and delighted to find the oozing of blood had ceased and the brain had receded within the skull.

The boy talked freely and coherently, more sensibly than for a long time, to the great delight of doctor and friends. He made an uneventful recovery. His mind improved steadily and he commenced where he left off years before. But he was a boy of twelve. The mind was not that of his years. It had to grow from the time it became a blank. He developed into an active, sensible man.

This young doctor received much credit for his brilliant idea and successful treatment. He had an interesting problem on his hands for solution. What caused this boy's loss of brain power? Why did he change from a bright, intellectual boy to almost an idiot?

The doctor solved this question to his satisfaction and other medical men agreed with him.

The bones of the skull are serrated—saw toothed—on the edges, in youth. This gives the brain opportunity to expand as it increases in size. In older or middle age, when the brain, practically, ceases to enlarge, the bones of the skull grow together, become soldered into one bone.

Now, the doctor decided that the bones of this boy's skull commenced to grow together—a premature solidification—when he was twelve years old. The brain had not room to expand, develop, thus producing compression of his brain, the result rendering him almost an idiot.

The removal of the piece of bone relieved the compression and the slicing off of a part, although but small in comparison to the whole brain, gave room for the brain inside the skull. Of course the skull never enlarged but through the operation the boy was changed from an idiot into a fairly competent man.

SCHOOL GARDEN PRIZES

INTERESTING EXERCISES LAST FRIDAY

The Prize Day Exercises of the Newton and Nonantum Home and School Garden Society were held in the Bigelow School Hall last Friday afternoon. The exercises were opened by the reading of a report of the summer's work by Mrs. L. S. Drake, followed by a short program by the children of the school and the awarding of prizes by Dr. F. E. Spaulding. The program of the entertainment and report of the summer's work is as follows:

Song—Pupils of the 7th grade.
Recitation—Josephine Olivigni.
Recitation—Helen Donnelly.
Song—Children.
Recitation—George Mandell.
Report of Summer's Work.
Newton, Mass., Sept. 19, 1911.
Mrs. Louis S. Drake, Chairman.

The judges appointed to inspect the gardens herewith submit to you their report.

Seventy-five School gardens and thirty Home gardens were started this year against ninety School gardens and thirty-three Home gardens which were started by the children of the Bigelow School last year.

Of last year's Home gardens barely one-fifth survived this year all but one-fifth survived.

In the School garden, there were fewer changes in ownership of the gardens than during the preceding summer.

These facts seem to warrant the belief that the children who applied for gardens this year were those who were truly interested in the work and not those who were attracted by the newness and novelty of the thing, to make a start only to drop out later when the novelty had worn off and real work had begun.

As a rule, the same flowers and vegetables were planted as were used before.

It was noted that better judgment was shown by the children in the planting of the seeds; the rows being more regular and allowance made for the growth of the plant.

Almost all the School gardens showed care and the continued interest of the children.

Among the Home gardens were some most excellent ones. In many instances much improvement was shown in the choice of location and in judicious planting. Several gave evidence of great care, were well arranged and cultivated.

On the other hand, a number of these Home gardens fell short of the standard, which can and ought to be reached. In some cases, failure was due to lack of interest, but in others of poor soil and unfavorable location in regard to sunlight.

In judging the gardens this year, many things were taken into consideration.

To begin with, the year has been one very trying to those having gardens; the extreme heat, the long period of dry weather have ruined many.

Cut worms destroyed everything so that planting had to be done a second time and in some cases, a third time.

The perseverance of those children who in the face of these difficulties, kept up their courage, planting again and again, was considered in the awarding of prizes.

Punctuality and faithful care of the garden also threw their weight in the favor of those who thus showed a greater interest.

Another thing which was considered was, whether all the work had been done by the child himself. In the case of a short vacation, it was permitted that another care for the garden without its affecting the rating of the owner.

It should be stated here that a number of the children were most faithful in caring for and keeping in excellent condition not only their own but also the gardens of their friends who were away for perhaps a week or two.

After taking into consideration these things, the committee has divided the gardens into three classes:

A garden to be classed as Favorable had to show care and interest.

A garden in the Special class, must show: careful weeding, loosened soil, crops well thinned.

Prize winners were those showing best and most careful work.

For the Home gardens there are two prizes, a first prize of $3 and a second prize of $2.

For the School gardens, a first prize of $3, a second prize of $2, and five Honor prizes of $1 each.

These Honor prizes are given instead of ribbons to those deserving much credit for their work.

The School gardens classed as Favorable, are: Frances Igo, James Walton, Charles Guthrie, Rosalie Lippin, Leslie McNeil, Leon Griswold, Mianese Gulian, Edward Donald.

The Home gardens rated as Favorable: Anna Murphy, Esther Murphy, Harry Woodward, Benjamin Lippin, Harold Cadman, Albert Pelton, Joseph Feola.

The School gardens rated as Special are: William Adams, Everett Kinchla, Mary Igo, Nora Gulian, Chester McNeil, Delbert Shepard, John Vogel, Julius Vogel.

The Home gardens rated as Special are: Philip Calkins, Rosalie Lippin, Lewis Bird.

In the awarding of the prizes the judges feel that much credit is due to the winners for their faithful work and successful results.

Respectfully submitted,
N. E. COOLIDGE, Director, EDWARD MOLL,
E. B. CHURCH.

NEWTON CLUB.

During the summer the Club House has been more or less quiet and the house staff under Mr. Mead's active management has improved the opportunity for needed renovations. The property was never in better condition and members start the fall season assured that their comfort and pleasure will be well looked after.

The Entertainment Committee has planned a varied list, beginning with a Men's Round Up for Oct. 14th. On Oct. 31st will be held an Informal Halloween Dance. Bridge parties are in prospect with musicals and other entertainments of a high order.

The Bowling Alleys have been put in first class condition and a busy season is looked for. There will be prize bowling Saturday nights, Oct. 7th and 28th. Bowling will be free to guests on the night of the Round Up, Oct. 14th. First Boston Pin Tournament starts Oct. 2nd.

Every Thursday night there will be Mixed Bowling, and the attendance of ladies and gentlemen on such nights last season promises much interest in these events. A Tournament for Women is scheduled to start the second week in October.

The club has received from Mr. Edgar S. Buffum some 28 volumes including Kipling's Works, 15 volumes, the Personal Memoirs of Gen. U. S. Grant and Jas. G. Blaines' Twenty Years of Congress and several other historical, poetical and miscellaneous books.

ELECTROCUTED

Mr. Frederick W. Swaine, aged 71, of 55 West Pine street, Auburndale, picked up a live wire which fell into his garden and set fire to the grass Wednesday afternoon, and was instantly killed.

He was working about the garden when the wire broke a short distance from him. He picked up the wire and fell to the ground. A neighbor ran out with a stick and succeeded in pushing the wire from his hands, which were burned to a crisp. His clothing also caught fire from the wire, but the blaze was soon extinguished with several buckets of water in the hands of neighbors.

Mr. Swaine lived with his son Fred, 71, and at the time of the accident his son's wife, who is an invalid, was sitting in a window and witnessed the death of the aged man. She became prostrated and Dr. Hutchinson was called, who, after examining Mr. Swaine and finding that he was beyond medical assistance, attended Mrs. Swaine.

The body was later viewed by medical examiner George L. West and removed to the house.

BABY DROWNED.

While playing near the old Newton Reservoir on Commonwealth avenue, last Monday afternoon, Gibson Bell, Jr., the 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Bell of Middlesex road, accidentally fell into the water and was drowned. With him at the time was his brother Julius aged 5 and a playmate Pauline Over, aged 5. Both of them made frantic efforts to save the drowning boy but to no avail. Their loud cries, on seeing the boy fall into the water brought a Metropolitan officer to the scene and after pulling the boy from the water he tried all possible means to restore him but it was too late.

Julius the drowned boy's brother ran to his home a short distance away and notified his father of the drowning. He rushed to the spot and with the assistance of the officer tried again to restore life into the boy. Finding their efforts were of no avail the drowned boy's body was taken to his home and later examined by the medical examiner. The children had often been cautioned by their parents not to play around the reservoir and it was in the absence of the boy's mother who was in Boston on a shopping tour that they went there to play.

She wore a veil, and her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was in blue crepe de chine, with pearl trimming, and she carried roses.

During the reception from 8 to 10, instrumental music was played by Miss Maude H. Littlefield and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Andrews. Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Richardson, Mrs. M. J. Wilson and Miss Carrie Wilson assisted in receiving. There were 250 guests. The ushers were: Edwin C. Osborne of Boston, Elmer E. Lewis and Alex. MacPherson of Dorchester and Arthur Robertson of Nahant. The house decorations were in autumnal colors. Refreshments were served upon the lighted lawn. MRS. BALLISTER'S WILL.

The will of Minetta F. Ballister of Newton has been filed at the probate court in East Cambridge. It is dated Dec. 2, 1909, and contains several public bequests. The All Saints' cottage hospital, Spring Hill, N. S., is bequeathed $500; school for crippled and deformed children, Boston, is bequeathed $400 and Grace church, Newton, is given $250 in trust, to be known as the "Ballister fund", the income to go to the ladies' missionary society of the church. The rest of the estate is left to her daughter Edith, with a provision that if the daughter died before the testatrix, the residue should eventually go to several charitable associations, which are named.

MULLIGAN WINS

Senator Mulligan was renominated by the Republican party last Tuesday for the unusual honor of a fourth term. The senator carried Natick, Watertown and Newton, while Mr. Hilton his opponent carried the remaining towns in the district. Hilton carried the district outside of Newton by 309, and as Mulligan carried Newton by 704, the nomination goes to the latter by a plurality of 335.

The detailed vote was as follows:

	Hilton	Mulligan
Ashland	77	52
Frammingham	750	311
Holliston	242	97
Hopkinton	85	20
Natick	78	319
Newton	480	1184
Sherborn	41	39
Watertown	165	234
Weston	115	112

Totals 2033 2368
Majority for Mulligan, 335.

THIRD GAME NECESSARY.

A tremendous crowd was present on the West Newton Common last Saturday afternoon when the Newton Catholic Club defeated the Nonantum Athletic Association by the score of 6 to 1. It was the second game in the series for the championship of the city the Nonantum club winning the first game.

Shortly before the game started a large crowd of the N. A. A. followers led by a brass band paraded onto the field, carrying banners with N. A. A. painted upon them and cheering lustily for their favorites.

The Catholic Club also had a band composed of nearly 100 boys each supplied with an old tin pan and a stick, and they banged out a noise that was deafening. Before their arrival upon the field, led by a boy on an old fashioned high bicycle, they paraded up and down Washington street, thumping their instruments and loudly cheering the Catholic Club team.

The game was, in all respects, far superior to that of the Saturday previous. Both teams played much better ball and the team work was a noticeable feature. Although the ball was hit hard by both sides the fielders were constantly on their toes and dragged down many a hard hit ball that was good for a couple of sacks, had they missed. Both infields worked to perfection and grounder following grounder was repeatedly snapped up and tossed to first nailing the batter. Connolly the Catholic Club's twirler was in excellent form. The opposing twirler, who has been suffering during the past week with a lame arm was hard hit during the contest but the fine support back of him kept the score down.

Final arrangements for the last game in the series for the inter-city championship of the garden city have been completed and it was decided to play the final game on the West Newton Common tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

MARSHALL—BEVANS.

Miss Constance Mary Bevans the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bevans of Page road and Mr. Henry Herbert Marshall of Hartford, Conn., were married Tuesday afternoon at the Central church, Newtonville, by Rev. Jay T. Stocking the pastor of the church. The wedding ceremony was attended by relatives only, the wedding music being played by Mrs. Carrie A. Parmenter of Malden, an aunt of the bride. Both the bride and groom were unattended. The bride was dressed in white voile and with a long train and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

A reception followed at the Bevans residence on Page road and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall being assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. Bevans and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Marshall of Elmwood, Mass. Brothers of the bride served as ushers. The house was attractively decorated with autumn leaves. Following a wedding trip to the White Mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall will make their home at Hartford, Conn. The groom is a graduate of the Mass. Institute of Technology.

AN ESCAPED LUNATIC

By MARTHA V. PEASELEY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

My brother Henry wrote me that he was going to bring his friend out to our country place for the week end. "He's a jim dandy, Edith," wrote Henry, "and I'm bringing him out purposely to introduce him to you."

About a mile from our place was the state insane asylum. Its proximity was a great disadvantage in that I was in constant dread lest some maniac should escape, come to our house and murder us all. An escaped lunatic had once come there when no one but a maid was in the house and had frightened her out of her senses.

About 5 o'clock one afternoon when I was just ready to go downstairs and out on to the piazza there came a ring at the telephone. I answered the call myself. It was from the asylum and was an inquiry as to whether we had seen or heard of one of the inmates who had left the grounds and gone in our direction. He had passed out with a suit case in his hand, telling the gatekeeper that he had been discharged and was going home. He was one of the most dangerous patients in the institution.

I replied that we had seen nothing of him and sincerely hoped we would not. Then I went out on the piazza and tried to think of something else. But I was unable to fix my thoughts on anything save a madman coming down on us. Every man who passed on the road a short distance from where I sat looked to me like a raving maniac. Finally I saw a man coming carrying a suit case. My heart went right up into my throat. I muttered a silent prayer that he might pass the gate. He did not. He stopped and looked up at our house. "He's the escaped patient," I moaned. "He's deliberating whether he'll come here or go farther. Heavens, he's coming in!"

There was no man in the house, and I simply must meet him. I sat perfectly still while he came up the walk, my heart wildly beating. I had read stories of persons turning away insane persons by coolness and strategy, but I didn't find any coolness in myself, and, as for strategy, I was incapable of carrying on even an ordinary conversation with the man. By the time he reached the piazza I saw a wild eyed creature with fiery red hair and atmospheric disturbances similar to heat waves emanating from his finger ends. Indeed, had I looked at him through dancing water or an imperfect window pane he couldn't have appeared more terrible. He said something to me, but I had no idea what it was, except that it was a question.

"Go on," I said—"oh, go on. They're after you! I just had a telephone from them asking if we had seen you. As you value your freedom, go!"

He stood looking at me. Was he going to spring upon me or would he with that cunning often to be found in persons of his kind attempt to outwit me so that he could effect an entrance into the house and murder us all without our being able to call for help?

"You can't come in!" I continued excitedly. "Oh, go on! Don't stop a moment. You'll be captured. Please go."

The man turned and, without a word, retraced his steps. I maintained my position until I had seen him out of the gate, then I staggered into the house, sank on a lounge, and that's the last I knew till I saw the maid sprinkling my face with water.

Ashamed of my weakness, I soon arose and by keeping smelling salts continually at my nostrils managed to get upstairs to my room. In the course of an hour the maid knocked at my door and said my brother had come. I was surprised at this, for he had written that he would be with us on Saturday afternoon, and it was now Friday. I was so ashamed of my terror at the approach of the lunatic—Henry had no respect for my timidity—that I resolved not to say anything about it. With the smelling salts in my hand, I went down into the living room.

Oh, my goodness gracious! Am I mad, or are my eyes askew? There, beside Henry, stands the maniac!

"What the deuce did you mean, Edith, by treating Mr. Trask as you did awhile ago? I missed the train, and he came on without me, only to be turned away by you. Were you crazy?"

"N-u-o, b-but I thought he was." Henry was very angry, but his friend soothingly said that I doubtless had an explanation. I gave it. A sickly smile gradually overpread the features of both the men, and, as for me, I ran up to my room and locked the door, and they didn't get me out of it till the next morning. When I came down to breakfast Henry and Mr. Trask were waiting for me. Henry, who was still mortified at my reception of his friend, said by way of introduction, just as if we hadn't met before:

"Edith, this is Mr. Trask, whom I wrote you I would bring up with me this week. I assure you he is in his right mind and has no intention of murdering you."

"Yes, I have," said the other. "I'm going to pluck her heart out of her."

Now, wasn't that nice of him?

Indeed, he turned the whole matter into a joke, getting Henry into good humor and making me feel less uncomfortable.

And he kept his word about plucking my heart out of me.

Two Kisses

By C. ARNOLD COLE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Formerly railroad cars passing through tunnels were not lighted as they are now. A number of episodes have been recorded of affectionate action in these dark holes in the ground, and kisses have been surreptitiously taken. Leonard Starkweather, a young man of some twenty-one years and proportionately inexperienced, took one of these kisses, and it led to no end of worry on his part. He finally paid the penalty.

He was traveling with Miss Gwendolin Stewart, a young lady two years his junior. Miss Stewart had one of those complexions which can only be compared to a ripe peach of a light shade, a pale rose on ivory. Her lips were of that same shade of pink and quite tempting enough to cause any man to wreck himself to touch them with his own. Starkweather had been introduced to her by a mutual friend before the train started, and she had been put under his care. This rendered his act all the more dishonorable.

The better to cover his tracks the kiss was stolen with malice aforethought. He told the young lady just before the train entered the long tunnel, the location of which he well knew, that he was going into the smoking car for a whiff at a cigar. Instead of doing so he went into the next car back, where he remained till the train shot under the bill. The young lady sat on the right of the car, the eighth seat from the rear. This he had carefully noted. Putting his hand on the back of every seat till he reached the eighth, he felt carefully till he had noted Miss Stewart's position, then quietly bent down and took the kiss.

A muffled cry was heard above the rattle of the train, but when the car shot out into the light there was no evidence of anything wrong. Starkweather had made good his escape, and Miss Stewart was apparently endeavoring to regain her equilibrium by fumbling with her handkerchief, which she was examining as though she had bought it at a bargain counter and doubted if she had not been sold as well as the linen.

Half an hour passed—quite enough to enable her to quiet down after the episode—when Mr. Starkweather returned to his seat beside her, bringing with him the odor of tobacco smoke. He was a trifle

GIVEN WATCH.

Orville Forte caddy master of the Brae Burn Country Club, completed his term of service Saturday after filling the office for more than a year. He resigned to enter the employ of a Boston wool house.

Previous to the start of the tourney a group of golfers gathered around and Mr. Harry L. Ayer, on behalf of the club, presented the young man with a beautiful gold watch, suitably inscribed. Every player on the links and many of the lady members of the club took the opportunity to shake hands with him and tender their good wishes. Forte left Monday for the Rangely lake region for two weeks.

Plymouth Theatre—That the famous Irish Players at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, have scored a phenomenal success is evidenced at every performance when the seating capacity of this beautiful playhouse is severely tested. Not only has the theatregoing public raved over the remarkable genius displayed by this wonderfully clever organization, but the conservative critics of the entire Boston press, unanimously declared them to be the one great dramatic novelty of the decade. For example, the Boston Post said: "The Irish Players scored a tremendous success, when the final curtain ended the wonderfully realistic climax of 'Birthright,' the audience were carried away by their enthusiasm for the artistic simplicity of the Irish Players and applauded for more than five minutes." The Boston Herald said: "These players were acted with a simplicity, a regard for the effect of the ensemble and a desire to serve the dramatist, that are rarely found on the stage today; these actors remind one of the best traditions of the French school."

A STATEMENT.

Mr. Frederick H. Hilton of Framingham requests us to publish the following statement.

I want to take this opportunity to thank the many loyal friends and supporters who assisted in my campaign throughout the First Middlesex senatorial district. The result, while disappointing in view of my being unsuccessful, is nevertheless gratifying in many ways. Judge Mulligan has made an excellent senator. He has been faithful in his duties and if reelected will probably be chairman of the judiciary committee and therefore titular head of that body. His great prestige throughout the district and the fact that he was so well known made him an exceptionally hard candidate to defeat.

The figures which I have shown I had a plurality of 369 in all of the towns outside of Newton, which was certainly an excellent showing. Newton, however, polled an unusually large vote for that city at a caucus or primary, 1664 votes being cast and the plurality secured there for Senator Mulligan overturned what I had in the towns and gave him a plurality of 335.

The vote in Watertown where I was practically unknown and without the personal friends which I had in other parts of the district was particularly pleasing.

I have pledged my active support to Senator Mulligan and shall assist him in every way possible in his campaign this fall. I trust that he will be successful.

I shall probably be a candidate another year when I do not expect Judge Mulligan will be a candidate for reelection and shall hope for greater success at that time.

NEWTON CENTRE PLAYGROUND

About 400 people witnessed the Field Day sports last Saturday. The feature event was a Soccer football game between Newton Centre and Brookline Gym, which the newly formed Centre team won by a score of 1-0. The lineup of the Newton Centre team was as follows: Rigby, goal; Hodges, left back; Skelton, right back; W. Forbush, left half back; Whaley, centre half back; Simpkins, right half back; Stanley, left outside forward; Quinn, left inside forward; Eichbauer, centre forward; Beckett, right inside forward; R. Forbush, right outside forward.

The goal was made by Skelton.

Another big event was the "Pushmobile" race, in which two boys on each team raced with home made wagons. The course was from Centre street on Langley road to Summer street, to Gibbs street, across Centre street and finished on the Playground. There were nine starters and all finished. The team made up of Stafford Brown and Charles Ide finished first and each received a cup. The others in the order of their finish were: 2nd, Carl Edwards; 3rd, Holden and Brown; 4th, L. Vachon and C. Vachon; 5th, R. Hawkes and O. Stevenson; 6th, J. Whaley and A. Cooke; 7th, J. Cordingley and Holly; 8th, Smith and J. Plimpton; 9th, R. Young and Uniacke.

Another "push-mobile" race in two divisions will be held at an early date.

The All-Round Championship of Newton Centre was won by R. West with 308 points; B. Groth second with 224-2, and R. Ellis third with 224-2. Other competitors were R. Raymond, M. Ide, A. Holt and G. Brown.

The basketball throwing for girls was won by Madeline Weston with a throw of 53 ft. 6 inches; Isabelle Whaley, second, with 48 ft. 8 in.; Mary Murphy, third, with 45 ft. 10 in.

Baseball throwing for boys resulted as follows:

Bush League—Won by Norman Edwards, 153 ft.; P. Dean, second, 142 ft.; H. Howe, third, 141 ft.

Midlet League—Won by C. Giles, 189 ft.; A. Mosher, second, 150 ft.; F. Linnehan, third, 147 ft.

Junior League—Won by H. Vachon, 249 ft.; F. Edwards, second, 222 ft.; J. Colt, third, 220 ft.

The girls' basketball game was won by the team captained by Madeline Weston from Isabelle Whaley's team, by a score of 11-4.

Several matches in the Tennis Tournaments were played during the afternoon.

Last Saturday morning the Acorn A. A. won a good game of football from the Devotion team of Brookline, score 6-5.

An attempt will be made to have a game each Saturday afternoon for the Newton Centre Soccer football team, as many as possible to be played on the Playground. Anyone wishing to try for a position on the team please communicate with Fred D. Eichbauer, Playground Director.

—Members of hose 1 were called out Sunday morning on an alarm from box 12 for the first time since the middle of July, to extinguish a small fire in the house occupied by Dr. Arthur Hudson of 142 Washington street. The cause of the fire was wax polish burning on the kitchen stove, which sent considerable smoke through the house. The auto chemical in responding to the alarm from Newtonville, was put out of commission for a short time because of a leak in the radiator. The damage was slight.

—Passengers at the railroad station about 10.30 Wednesday morning witnessed a peculiar accident, when the western express for Boston ran into and smashed five trucks which had just been deposited upon the inbound track from the out bound local train. One truck owned by the family of Mr. C. E. Riley of Bellevue street was carried some distance on the cow catcher.

The republicans of Massachusetts have made their selections this fall, for the various state offices, without the slightest interference from the so called "machine." Large majorities have been given the leading candidates of the party and every member can enter the fall campaign with enthusiasm and confidence. In Frothingham and Luce, the republicans have candidates who can command the utmost respect of all men, who have proved their value to the state in many ways, and to whom the state should give further opportunity for efficient service. A long pull and a strong pull will redeem the good old commonwealth from the present vacillating executive government, and place in power, men who will honor and not disparage the state.

Mayor Hatfield is to be complimented and the city is to be congratulated on the appointments just announced of the commission to revise the building ordinances of the city. Practical results should be obtained from the secretary of the New England Fire Insurance exchange, an architect, a lawyer, a builder and a mason. Modern building conditions have rendered our present ordinances of little value and the result of the labors of this commission will be awaited with some impatience.

The direct primary law worked in a most satisfactory manner in this city, as evidenced by the large vote cast on Tuesday. Nearly two thousand men participated in the selection of the candidates of their various parties, a record for this city, where previous primaries have been usually cut and dried affairs.
With further familiarity with the new law, it is believed that the vote will further increase.

Now is the time for those citizens who believe that city work has been neglected in various ways the past year to interview their aldermen and endeavor to impress upon him the necessity for larger appropriations. The budget for 1912 will be adopted in November and the various city departments work under appropriations made at that time.

The republicans of this district have selected Judge Mulligan for the unusual honor of fourth term in the Massachusetts senate. Let us all join together and give the Judge a rousing majority.

"NEWTON" SUCCESSFULLY LAUNCHED

MANY GUESTS PRESENT AT FORE RIVER LAST MONDAY

The new steam collier, "Newton" the fourth boat in the modern fleet which
the New England Coal and Coke Company is building, was successfully launched Monday noon at the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy.

About 500 guests of the Company attended the launching which took place exactly on time, 12.30 o'clock, the boat being christened by Miss Dorothy Whitley of West Newton a niece of Mayor Hatfield.

The party came to the yards on a special train of eight cars which left the South Station at 11 o'clock.

As the christening party stepped from the train alongside the big machine shop in the yard and in plain view of the big hull of the Newton, Admiral Bowles, president of the Fore River company, presented to Miss Whitely a big bunch of red roses, which she carried to the launching stand and which she held in one hand while with the other she broke the bottle of champagne and gave the ship her name.

This bottle held a quart of champagne and was suspended from the bow of the ship by long streamers of tri-colored ribbon. The bottle was encased in the customary meshwork which held the broken pieces together after the bottle was broken in the christening ceremony. A big platform was built around the bow of the vessel and Miss Whitely was placed in a position where she could smash the bottle on the port side of the bow. She was surrounded by her attendants as she pronounced the words and broke the bottle, and then all cheered for Newton.

The launching platform reached about half way up the bow of the boat, and was decorated in the national colors.
Miss Whitely occupied a special portion of the enclosure and when the boat began to move, broke the bottle of champagne on the bow, as she christened it the "Newton." The collier moved easily down the greased ways, which smoked considerably from the friction, ere she reached the water. Admiral Bowles then led in three cheers for the "Newton" which were given with a will.

The ship, which had moved slowly for a few seconds after the wine was spilled over her prow, gradually gained headway as she slid down the greased ways and pushed aside great waves as she entered the water. The tugs which had whistled a greeting quickly came alongside the collier and, after towlines had been taken on board, they pulled her around to a nearby wharf where the finishing touches will be put on before the trials and delivery to the company.

The boat received a double christening, the first bottle of champagne provided for the affair, having brushed off the launching stand, some time previous to the arrival of the party, and breaking on the bow of the ship. Sailors regard this as a favorable omen.

Miss Whitely, the sponsor, who is the niece of Mayor Charles E. Hatfield of Newton, was accompanied by 10 of her young friends from Newton, and they served as maids and matrons of honor.
They were Miss Rachel Gilmore, Miss Elsie Harrington, Miss Terese Roquemore, Miss Louise Walworth, Miss Clara Webster, Miss Marion Whitely, Miss Anna Spencer, Miss Bertha Whitley, Mrs. Spencer Arend and Mrs. Cyrus Schirmer.

The Newton was launched with all her pilot houses and bridges in place, and was said to be 80 per cent completed. All that remains to finish her is to install the engines and boilers, and these are ready for the work of installation.

"I want to confess to you that at the launching of the Everett, which took

After the Newton had been taken in tow by tugs to the fitting out dock alongside the monster battleship Riv-adavia of the Argentine republic, the invited guests were piloted to the new battleship of the company, just completed, where a luncheon was served in baquet style.

At the luncheon Miss Whitely occupied the seat of honor at the side of Admiral Bowles. On either side of these two were Congressman John W. Weeks of Newton, Mayor Hatfield of Newton, James L. Richards, president of the New England coal and coke company, and Robert Winsor and J. B. Russell, directors of the company; Alonzo R.
Weed of the state gas and electric light commission, Frank W. Remick, James M. Prendergast and Gen. William A.
Bancroft of the Boston elevated railroad company, Charles Thorne, E. E.
White of West Virginia and Charles Francis Adams 2d.

At other tables were Miss Whitely's mother, her attendants and Charles Skentelbery, marine superintendent of the New England coal and coke company; F. C. Dunne, treasurer of the Amoskeag mills; D. C. Ives, traffic manager of the chamber of commerce, and J. J. Bright, director of the Boston elevated railway company. During the luncheon the christening bottle, together with its meshwork and ribbons were presented to Miss Whitely as a souvenir of the launching. The broken bottle was enclosed in a teakwood box made for the occasion.

At one end of the ship was a miniature reproduction of the Newton.

MISS DOROTHY WHITLEY,
Who Christened the "Newton."

Admiral Bowles presided at the dinner and introduced as after dinner speakers Mayor Charles E. Hatfield of Newton, Pres. James L. Richards of
the New England coal and coke company, E. E. White of the Glen White coal company of West Virginia, Congressman John W. Weeks of Newton and Mayor William T. Shea of Quincy.
"It means much in these days," said Pres. Richards, "when one's time is so fully occupied, for business men to take the time necessary to attend a launching, and I want to assure you all, especially you men from the southern coal fields who have come so far, that we appreciate the spirit which prompted you to come, and I hope during your stay with us you will have seen some things that in a measure will pay you for coming."

"I want to confess to you that at the launching of the Everett, which took place in July, 1907, I was not feeling particularly cheerful, not alone on account of your calling upon me to say something on that occasion, but because the question uppermost in my mind was whether the investment of half a million dollars in a new type of boat, such as the Everett, could be made to pay.

"While my immediate business associates and I were sanguine of the ultimate success, some of us, at least, from time to time questioned whether we were right or some of those who had been in the coal business many years longer than we, and who thought we were making a great mistake in building these large boats, which they said would prove to be 'white elephants' on our hands."

"I am pleased to say to you today that our most sanguine expectations have been realized. That others as well as ourselves have found that the type of boat for carrying coal like the Everett, of which the Newton is practically a duplicate is a success, is demonstrated by the fact that since the Everett was launched, six other ships of like design have been built, three of which have been constructed by others than ourselves."

"In order to utilize a ship of this character and make it pay, one must have satisfactory terminals for the loading and discharging of coal. We have a very large amount of money invested in our terminal at Everett, where we have large pockets and ground storage, traveling bridge more than 20 miles of railroad track connecting with the steam railroads and 27 feet of water at low tide."

"At the launching of the Everett four years ago, in referring to our Everett terminal, I said we expected to be able to unload one of these ships, carrying over 7000 tons, in not more than 10 hours. At our Everett terminal we now discharge two of these boats at one time, and our record for unloading one of them is 7 hours and 40 minutes."

"I also said at the launching of the Everett, 'We expect to load these ships in from five to six hours.' The record for loading is five hours."

"This type of ship would be unsuccessful unless it could be both loaded and unloaded quickly, for the expense, involving interest and depreciation, is more than $400 per day per boat."

The Channing Branch of the Women's Alliance, have sent out cards for a reception to the Rev. and Mrs. Harry Lutz on Tuesday evening October the tenth from eight until ten o'clock in the parlors of Channing church.

A TRUE (?) STORY.

"Speaking about Luther Burbank", said Farmer Brown, "I tried this grafting business once myself."

It was this way. I found a double yolked egg in my Plymouth Rock's nest one morning, and thought I would try a little grafting myself. I took a ducks egg and carefully blew out one of the yolks of the hens egg and then blew the yolk of the ducks egg into the hen egg shell without breaking the yolk at all. I then sealed up the hole with shoemakers wax and put it under a hen who was just beginning to set. Well, by gum, you may believe me or not, but when that egg was hatched I near died of laffin.

In the first place it was the handdest looking specimen of an animal that I ever saw. It was neither one thing or the other. It had one hens foot and one ducks. Its bill was in two parts one of each animal and one half of the brute had hens feathers and the other ducks.

I was afraid I couldn't raise it but it grew and I hoped to sell it to Barnums circus. It got out of the coop one night and the duck part wanted to go into the creek and swim and it did and before I could stop it the hen part was drowned. Since then I have let nature take its own way and have not experimented since." From Kempton's "Book of Nonsense."

OFF ON VACATION.

Little bank roll, ere we part,
Let me hug you to my heart:
All the year I've clung to you
I've been faithful, you've been true;
Little bank roll, in a day
You and I will start away
To a gay and festive spot:
I'll come home, but you will not.

James Cummings for many years a resident of this city died at his home at 73 North street, Newton Centre, last Friday at the age of 75 years. He had been in poor health for some time and had gradually declined until the time of his death. Haney assistant rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart of Newton Centre and many of his friends and relatives attended the services. The interment was held in the Holyhood Cemetery at Brookline.

In Suburban Life for October, those who dwell in the beautiful places just outside the big cities will find particular delight if they have any inside-the-home problems, because the issue is devoted largely to the subject of interiors. Suburban Homes," "Properly Heating the Suburban Home," and "Painting the Home—Inside and Out" are the titles of some of the richly illustrated articles. Mabel Osgood Wright, author of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife," tells of "The Birds of My Garden." IN MEMORIAM.

The death of Mrs. Charles W. Leonard on Sept. 14th after a protracted illness brings a deep sense of loss to a large circle of friends extending far beyond the city of Newton where she had so long been a resident.

A readiness to see and appreciate the needs of others; a heart full of loving sympathy for all in distress; a willingness and tact in rendering assistance to those whose paths were in adversity which took the sting out of accepting charity; a loving and devoted wife, mother and sister; these are a few of the attributes of Mrs. Leonard which endeared her to the community and made her death so keen a loss to her family and friends.

She was actively interested in the local benevolent institutions and causes. She was a director of the Newton Home for Aged People for several years and a trustee of the Newton Hospital until ill health prevented her from longer sharing in the responsibilities which were her delight.

To the latter institution she gave, with her husband, the Eldredge Ward in memoriam of her aunt Mrs. E. T. Eldredge.

Her private charities were many. No one appealed to her without receiving at least kind and sympathetic attention.

She will be greatly missed and her memory will be long cherished.

THEATRES.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—Gus Edwards, the celebrated song writer and composer, will be the principal attraction at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Last season Mr. Edwards invaded vaudeville with his big Song Revue. Carrying a company of thirty-three singers, dancers, and comedians, and eight elaborate scenes The 1911-1912 edition of The Song Revue, as it is called, surpasses in spectacular beauty and originality even his great act of last year. A big novelty is "By the light of the Silvery Moon," introduced in a scene showing a beautiful sylvan lake after nightfall. Other big features will be Salerno, the European juggler; Marie Gardner and Grant Stoddard in "Vaudeville Frivolities," Harlan Knight & Co. in "The Chalk Line," The Thunderbolts, English musical comedians; The Heim Children; and Melrose, the clown with the tables and chairs.

Tremont Theatre—More than 50,000 theatregoers of Boston and the communities which surround it have seen "Excuse Me" during the six weeks it has been at the Tremont Theatre and the impressive success the Pullman palace car farce has achieved indicates that at least half as many more will gather at the Tremont street playhouse during the three weeks that the piece has yet to stay in Boston. "Excuse Me" will not be presented in any other city in New England, nor will it be possible to extend the present engagement, as contracts made a long time ago call for the appearance of "Excuse Me" in Philadelphia upon October 23rd. When the play does leave this section it will take with it all of the records for early season attendance. When he conceived the idea of making a farce out of the incidents that might be expected to punctuate a railroad journey from Chicago to the Pacific coast, Rupert Hughes hit upon an absolute novelty of tremendous possibilities for humorous exploitation.

Castle Square Theatre—The first musical comedy production of the season at the Castle Square will be made next Monday, George Cohan's "Forty Five Minutes from Broadway" having been selected by Mr. Craig. Combining many varieties of dramatic entertainment in a single play, it promises with its music and spectacle its comedy and chorus to be an exceptional attraction. Critics all over the country have been loud in praise of this piece, and one of them has said of the characters "From first to last they are at bottom clearly recognizable figures that seemingly have just turned the corner. They have character and the more when clever players bring them to life." And clever players will bring them to life at the Castle Square. The cast will comprise the full strength of Mr. Craig's company, and to it will be added a large chorus. The orchestra and musical direction will be in charge of Joseph Marr.
